CHILDREN'S DRESSES.
"What sights Julia has made of those girls. She's been trying to make summer dresses for them, and a pretty mess she's made of it." Julia doesn't know this, though—oh, no. Her poor efforts have been praised by one and another, more complimentary than honest, so she continues to make sights of her girls until some friend, kinder than the rest, hints that much trouble would be spared if she would try ready-made articles. When Julia next requires dresses

SHE GOES TO FARMER'S.
Interviews Miss Burke; has a look through the department, and sees quite a number of children's costumes. She sees Print and Cambric Costumes, Satteen and Gingham, Biege and Cashmere, Foulard and Lustre, Homespun and Merino. Is much taken with a pretty print costume of pale blue in the Princess Robe style, neatly trimmed, with embroidered work, price 5s 6d; thinks the same dress in Pink prettier still. Sees a charming little little dress in Ivory Satteen trimmed Peacock, in the new Dorothy shape, the Æsthetic costume for children, price 10s 6d. Likes a Drab Beige costume, trimmed self-colour surah, with a neatly kilted skirt and pretty lace ruffling (price 12s 6d) much. Is very sweet on a regular little Gem in Grey Cashmere, with trimming of Peacock Satin de Lyon and ruffling of Torchon Lace, price 20s, and finally makes her selections. Altogether she is impressed with the fact that FARMER'S is

THE STORE FOR CHILDREN'S COSTUMES, and that her efforts at home-made dresses for her girls have not been an unmixed success. Well pleased with her purchases she is ready to recommend her friends, and thus an enormous trade is transacted from week to week in these little items that have so often puzzled and perplexed most mothers.

SUMMER HOSIERY.
A well-assorted stock of Ladies' SUMMER HOSIERY, direct from the noted makers, G. Brettle and Co.; useful items in Children's Socks, Misses', and Ladies' Balbriggan and Lisle Thread Hose, from 10s 6d per dozen; Ladies' Navy Seal and Black Balbriggan Hose, 12s 6d and 16s 6d per dozen; Ladies' White Cotton Hose, 13s per dozen. FARMER and CO.

FRENCH MANTLES, JACKETS, VISITES.
A most marvellous shipment same character as Costumes, and purchased in the same way, i.e., similarly sacrificed. These Mantles are worthy an extended notice, which, however, we must delay for want of time. You needn't delay, seeing them, though, as they are all marked, and will be ready for sale this morning in our Mantle Showroom. FARMER and CO.

FANCY DEPARTMENT.
Black Satin Sunshades, plain and trimmed lace, 6s 6d to 21s; ditto, Handpainted, 21s. Ladies' Silk Umbrellas, 7s 6d to 12s 6d. Children's Sunshades, Cotton, 2s 9d; Black Satin, 4s 6d and 5s 6d. Ladies' Cambric Handkerchiefs, plain, 5s 6d to 12s 6d per dozen; hem-stitched, 10s 6d to 17s 6d. Ladies' Fancy Ties, 9d to 2s 6d. All prompt cash prices. FARMER and CO.

DRESS MATERIALS.
Our prices for every description of dress fabrics are the lowest wholesale. We are first in the field with the new styles; and our Dress Department offers, as far we know, the best assortment in the city. This is a consideration, as it saves trouble in making your selection. We have some high-class ranges on show this week in a variety of new materials. Prices range 6½d, 7½d, 8½d, 10½d, 1s, and on to 2s 6d. Patterns free per post.

THE ROYAL HOMESPUN BEIGE, 30-yard lengths.

IN PIECES OF THIRTY YARDS.
This excellent Summer Dress Material is now introduced to the Australian public for the first time. Equal, if not superior to the far-famed Royal Devonshire Serge, the Royal Homespun Beige has rapidly won its way into public favour in the United Kingdom, and has been used also in the Royal household. It is manufactured in Killiecrankie, solely from fine clothing wools, and is now presented to the public as a perfect Summer fabric as regards weight, texture, and colourings, and wear-resisting qualities. The agency for all Australia and New Zealand is held by Messrs. Farmer and Co. only, from whom samples and all other particulars may be obtained. In pieces of thirty yards, 18s 9d per piece. FARMER'S ONLY.

DRESS TRIMMINGS, HABERDASHERY.
There is no place in the city where a lady can more surely depend on getting exactly what she wants in the way of trimmings than in our warehouse. As for Haberdashery, we keep the best make only, and will never alter in this respect. The cost of a dozen of cotton or tape, or a packet of needles or pins of the best quality, is never much more than is the cost of the commonest. In Haberdashery we sell the best goods made, 25 per cent lower than any other house. Prompt cash only. FARMER and CO.

HOUSEHOLD LINEN.
There is no stock in Sydney at all equal to ours, while as to price, large or small buyers can in equal measure effect considerable saving. We are now opening up the season's assortment of Table Linen, also Mosquito Nets, also Turkish Towels, also Summer Quilts, also Irish Linens. We have a fresh supply of the unequalled Guinea Longcloths, in all numbers. We have also special numbers in Twilled Sheetings, the best goods ever landed into New South Wales. All prompt cash prices.
FARMER and CO.

THOSE GUINEA LONGCLOTHS OF FARMER'S.
How the trade does worry about them. How they fret themselves to find out who makes them. There's a principal partner of one of the largest Sydney houses in London at the present time with a special commission to spare no expense in finding out who makes Farmer's Guinea Longcloths. This gentleman goes mouching round the London warehouses with a sample of the Guinea Longcloth, interviewing all the Manchester men with a "This is a nice longcloth, isn't it? Can you do anything like this?" But he won't find out the maker, oh no. He'll have to come back to Sydney and get the Government to appoint a Royal Commission to probe to the bottom of this mystery.

VELVET PILE CARPETS.
New colourings and designs, from drawings by eminent architects, are now being exhibited in our Carpet Showroom. Also, some of the choicest styles in Brussels Carpets (early English characters) that we have ever shown. Prices are the lowest for prompt cash. FARMER and CO.

NEW DRESS MATERIALS.
Each week witnesses the introduction of some fresh novelty. This morning we shall show some charming goods, in French in Carmelites, at 11½d; some new ranges in Cashmere Beige, at 12d; some very choice Madras Muslins and other new textile fabrics. FARMER and CO.

CARPETS.
We sell just 10 carpets to every one sold by any other furnishing house in the city. We do this because it is now pretty generally conceded that, quality considered, we give the best value that can be had. We get advantages from manufacturers on account of our very large output, conceded to no other house in New South Wales, and these advantages we share with our customers. We sell for prompt cash only, and quote Crossley's best Tapestries 2s 6d per yard and upwards. We have an astonishingly nice selection of Queen Anne Tapestries and Brussels; Linoleums, plain and patterned; Floorcloths, Mats, Rugs, &c. Our charge for making and laying carpets is 3d per yard; and if this is higher than is quoted elsewhere, there is very good reason for it. We can confidently recommend any carpet we sell. A good carpet wears twice as long if well made and laid, and it cannot be well made and laid under 3d per yard.
FARMER and CO.

UPHOLSTERY ESTIMATES.
We give estimates for every kind of Upholstering, from the smallest to the most important items. We make and fit blinds, cornices, curtains, vallances, &c., upholster chairs and suites, and do this at the lowest wholesale charges for prompt cash. Our work in this department is now so well known that we have far and away the largest trade in this way in the city. Out of over one hundred estimates for various furnishing matters given in competition during last month, we secured every order. In no single instance were we beaten. This speaks volumes for the successful management of our Upholstering Department. FARMER and COMPANY.

GENTLEMEN'S SOCKS.
Is there any question as to the marked superiority of our store for these goods? Is it possible to purchase Gentlemen's Half-hose at even 25 per cent. higher than our prices, quality duly considered? We unhesitatingly answer no. Ladies who purchase socks for gentlemen should note this. Gentlemen themselves should note it. Economy, to be thoroughly studied, must be studied in connection with small matters. It is not well that you should be content to save 10s or 15s in a suit of ready-made clothes, and leave small savings of 6d or 1s a pair on socks neglected. See to this, then. Buy your socks at our establishment, for we are selling Gentlemen's Half-hose, good, durable, well-finished articles, at 10s 6d per dozen, that you cannot purchase elsewhere under 15s. Extra-finished striped Half-hose, choice colours, at 12s, that we defy you to buy under 18s anywhere else in the city. In all other lines proportionate saving may be effected by buying from us for prompt cash only.
FARMER and CO.

GENTLEMEN'S SCARFS.
Save where you can. Do not disdain to save threepence on a tie; sixpence, one shilling, or eighteenpence on a Scarf, because these amounts are not in themselves large. True economy is economy in the smallest items as well as in the largest. If you can buy a Scarf you like at 1s 6d which you have been in the habit of paying 2s 6d for, there is no reason why you should pay the extra shilling. And this you may do any day in our Establishment. We are certain our Cash System affords opportunity to purchasers to save more or less in Every Department of our business, but in no other department is the percentage of saving so large as in Gentlemen's Ties, Scarfs, and Braces. See to it, then, that you do not any longer neglect these small matters. Trifles they may be, but do not underrate the importance of trifles.
FARMER and CO.

GENTLEMEN'S WHITE SHIRTS.
Our sales in White Shirts have just trebled in twelve months, i.e., we are now selling three Shirts for every one that we sold last year. We note this fact as evidence of the public appreciation of our Shirts. It points to a satisfaction on the part of our customers that is very gratifying to us. Now, last year we quoted our lowest price White Shirts at 21s the half-dozen, and we knew them to be the cheapest shirt in the market—cheapest, not because they were the lowest price shirt to be had (for they were not that, and they are not the lowest price now), but the cheapest shirt in that no value like them could be obtained for a guinea the half-dozen. This year we have not lowered the price, but we have raised the standard of quality. One Guinea the half-dozen will still be our lowest price; but we shall supply a better shirt at this price than we have hitherto done. Our large output enables us to do this. Then our highest prices run 35s, 30s, 35s, 40s, and 45s the half-dozen, all splendid value.
FARMER and CO.

BOYS' EVERY DAYCLOTHES.
"Here's a rough and tumble suit for that young rascal, Harry. A stout, loosely woven, heatherish, all wool tweed, that will stand any amount of rough usage, look well, and wear like pin wire. We've hundreds of them in different shades, price 12s 6d per suit." "Oh, but its a knickerbocker suit surely, at that price." It's nothing of the kind. It's a nice 4-button sac suit with vest and trousers. Trousers measure 26 inches in the leg seam, and if Harry takes them longer, we have them to measure 27 and 28 inches, all sizes, in fact, from 23 to 28½ inches. Bigger suits for 2s or 3s more. Similar suits to these some houses in the city are making a big splash about at one guinea. But we sell for prompt cash only, and make all our own clothing in our London factory. FARMER and CO.

LOUIS XI.
LOUIS XI. ... ... Mr. ALFRED DAMPIER
THE DAUPHIN ... ... LILY
MARTHA ... ... Miss AMIE ADERE

"Mr. Dampier's performance of the name part is equal to anything he has yet done in Sydney. His Louis XI. is both scholarly and realistic. It is no light task for an actor to make up so perfectly as to conceal his own identity in the presentment of age—decrepid age—ever struggling to avoid the death which it fears at every turn. A combination of murderous treachery, cowardice, and religion—from first to last he is Louis XI."—Sydney Morning Herald.

"Mr. Dampier's impersonation of the celebrated French King is really an admirable one. Thoroughly artistic in conception and execution, it must be classed among his best efforts. Nothing that he has ever done was finer, in the way of facial expression, than the scene where Louis, in a paroxysm of rage and terror, after his interview with Nemours, falls on the ground, and strikes with his dagger at an imaginary enemy."—Evening News.

Mr. JAMES CARDEN'S appearance was the signal for the heartiest and most prolonged applause ever accorded to any artist within the walls of this theatre, and exceeded only by his masterly conception and pourtrayal of BERTUCCIO.
Miss MARSTON LEIGH, in the refined role of FIODELSIA, with the charming and characteristic song of "Lovely Night," was the recipient of enthusiasm seldom heard.
The audience having expressed their approbation so unanimously, the management have decided to repeat the

WILSON'S GRAND WORLD CIRQUE and HIPPODROME.

If ENTHUSIASTIC APPLAUSE
and
UNBOUNDED SATISFACTION are any criterion of merit, then the vast concourse of spectators assembled at the CIRCUS, at the performances on Saturday afternoon and evening, fully proves that the HIGHEST CLASS ARENIC ENTERTAINMENT ever presented in AUSTRALIA is now
IN YOUR MIDST.

The PROGRAMME in its entirety is one of the VERY BEST
that the management has ever produced.

The Equestrian Quadrille
of
LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT, introducing
the BEAUTIFUL HIGHLY TRAINED DANCING HORSES.

The Graceful and Grand
LADY EQUESTRIENNES
on bare-backed steeds,
without saddle or bridle.

Miss VICTORIA COCKE,
Miss ROSIE,
and
LA PETITE ADELE.

O'BRIEN THE GREAT,
EUROPE'S GREATEST EQUESTRIAN,
Victor and Winner of the GOLD MEDAL in the
GRAND TOURNAMENT
at Hengler's Cirque over nine competitors.

Young O'Brien seems to have been by Nature herself intended to realise the words of Shakespeare, who must have had just such another being in his mind when he described young Harry; who

"Rose from the ground like feathered Mercury,
And vaulted with such ease into his seat,
As if the rider dropped from the clouds
To turn and wind a fiery Pegasus
And witch the world with noble horsemanship."
—Henry IV., Part 1., Act 4, Scene 1.

THIS ACCOMPLISHED ARTIST springs from the Ring
while the Horse is at its highest speed, and alights on his feet
on the back of a FLYING STEED (16 hands high) after a series of unprecedented feats which always elicit the LOUDEST APPLAUSE.

THE GRAND STEEPLECHASE,
THE GRAND HURDLE JUMPING,
THE GREAT WATER JUMP,
THE ASCENSION OF THE TERRIFIC CASCADES, were all accomplished by the Ladies and Gentlemen of this Mammoth Company, mounted on splendid hunters, in the most fearless, daring, and sensational manner that has ever been witnessed.

THE GUNDAGAI VOLUNTEERS
drew forth storms of laughter, and hilarious applause.

The Irrepressible Ever Green "BARNEY" was welcomed back by the admirers of this comical equine wonder with thunders of cheers, louder (if possible) than ever before.

Herr MAX SCHUMANN mounted on ABDALLAH.

"I will mount myself
"Upon a courser whose delightful steps Shall make the gazer joy to see his tread."
—Shakespeare.

When Mr. SCHUMANN
rides gracefully into the arena, in full hunting costume, upon the exquisite horse ABDALLAH,
the force of the above words comes strongly upon the spectators' mind. The horse's gait can only fitly be characterized as "delightful steps," and the popularity of the act itself proves that the "Gazers joy to see him tread."
The union between man and steed is perfect; the horse is proud of the rider, the rider evidently loves the horse, as well indeed he may.
ABDALLAH
is a thoroughbred black New South Wales Stallion, a perfect model of symmetry, sired by LORD OF LYNN, and under
Mr. SCHUMANN'S
able hands has improved on his former excellent training.
THE MENAGE ACT is admirably designed, and ABDALLAH
steps in perfect accord to the slightest movement of his rider; the swaying motion of his body, the proud prancing of his feet, the stately curving of his neck, each and all in exact obedience to the rhythmic measure of the music.

The Cabul Fire Horse, SALAMANDER, has become perfectly docile within the last few days under the training of his master.

The two beautiful high-caste Arab horses,
SIR HENRY and SIR JOHN,
new candidates for public favour, and which have only made their appearance a few times
BEFORE ANY AUDIENCE,
execute the most intricate evolutions with unfailing accuracy. These young, docile, and magnificent horses were imported direct from Arabia by Mr. Wilson, and since their appearance in the arena have won that hearty applause which horses, like men, are so fond of, and work so honestly to obtain.

OUR DRESS CIRCLE IS FITTED UP IN AN ELEGANT MANNER, OUR STALLS WITH COMFORTABLE CHAIRS, and OUR GALLERY WITH GOOD SEATS, every visitor to the circus being able to obtain a good view of every feature presented.
Exits and entrances are well arranged, and all our patrons may depend on witnessing a recherché entertainment, and receiving civility and politeness from all attachés.
JOHN WILSON, Proprietor.
MAX SCHUMANN, Director.

PRIZE AUSTRALIAN CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR CARDS.

JOHN SANDS, 374, George-street, Sydney.

The designs selected by Mr. Sands from the Christmas Card Competition, inaugurated by him in May last, are now ready, and may be obtained at all booksellers and stationers in Australia.

These cards are essentially Australian in character, being designed by Australian artists, drawn on stone by Mr. Sands' own lithographers, and printed at his works as above. Purchasers wishing to obtain samples of this new colonial industry are requested to observe that each card bears on it Mr. Sands' trade mark—an Hour-glass. This caution is necessary, as numerous cards are being offered to the public which, although Australian in character, are of European production.

In addition to the cards of his manufacture, Mr. Sands has imported the most varied collection ever seen in the colonies. Those desirous of possessing cards selected with artistic taste, cannot do better than inspect his stock, which includes the various prize designs from the home competitions, together with the best productions from the principal English, Continental, and American manufacturers.

Mr. Sands has also on view the pictures gaining the premiums of One Hundred and Fifty Guineas at his late competitive exhibition at the Art Gallery of New South Wales.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

Saturday Evening.

In the Import markets this morning business was not very brisk, and no changes in value transpired. The auction sales of produce were continued this morning. Large horns were in good request and sold up to 32s. 6d., while small and tips ranged from 2s. 6d. per 100. Bones scarcely so firm, and may be quoted at from £8 to £9. Hair met with ready sale, horse-tail realising 11d. to 16d.; mane, from 9d. to 10d.; cow hair, from 4d. to 1s.; beeswax, 9d. to 10½d.

The Times of the 5th October thus refers to the great fluctuations which had taken place in the London money market:—

"The increased firmness of the money market to-day, and the excitement caused by the large withdrawal of gold for Egypt, coupled with reports of withdrawals for the United States to-morrow, cannot but give additional interest to the question of the sudden changes of the value of money in Lombard-street. There is no article which changes so quickly in value as the hire of money in Lombard-street. In August there was a sudden change in about three weeks from an open market discount rate of hardly 1½ per cent. per annum to one of 4 per cent. per annum, with no small apprehension that rates might very soon go higher. From the beginning of September, again, until about a week ago, the open market rate fell from 4 per cent. to 2½ per cent., transactions being heard of at even lower rates; but already the rate is once more 4 per cent., with every prospect that the Bank will go to 5 per cent. on Thursday, and take the open market with it. This would be almost an advance of 100 per cent. in value in about ten days, while the aggregate oscillations in about two months, putting the rises and falls together, are enormous. The primary cause of all these changes is, no doubt, the smallness of the reserve with which Lombard-street usually works, and the practice of almost all the dealers to keep no reserve at all. Hence the slightest variations in the supply and demand of the article produce a great effect on the price, the effect being also intensified by the eagerness of dealers, on one side, to lend out sums on which they pay interest, and the necessities of many borrowers, on the other side, who have to obtain funds with which to meet their engagements. It should always be understood, however, that the oscillations in Lombard-street are comparatively limited in their range, and the value of the hire of loanable capital throughout the country does not change with the value of that part which is employed in discounting bills, and mainly bills of a certain class only, to which the extreme variations of the discount rates apply. The rates for money generally rise and fall more gradually than the rates for this particular sort of money."

The following table shows the declared value of Imports and Exports at the Sydney Customs from January 1 to November 19, 1880 and 1881:—

The Sydney Morning Herald.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1881.

The most remarkable passage in the Treasurer's financial statement is that wherein he expresses the belief that the colony is losing a probable income in pastoral rents to the amount of a million and a quarter, or a million and three-quarters per annum by maintaining free selection before survey throughout the length and breadth of the land. Those are not his exact words; but that is his obvious meaning. It is estimated that the area under lease in 1882 will be 132,000,000 acres; and, says Mr. Watson, "I am inclined to believe that, were these lands classified, and a better tenure granted to the squatters, the rents of runs might be fixed at so much per acre, according to the suitability of the country for grazing purposes, by which an annual revenue of from £1,500,000 to £2,000,000 could easily be secured." But "it now appears that we are to receive only £205,000 in 1881, and £240,000 in 1882." The additional rents could be obtained by granting the lessees a better tenure. But a tenure that would yield anything like this increase could not exist contemporaneously with the present system of indiscriminate free selection. We may have the one or the other separately, but cannot have both together. If, therefore, we prefer free selection, a million and a quarter to a million and three-quarters of pure income per annum is the price we have to pay for it, without taking account of costs and expenses.

It is remarkable that the Treasurer, who put this view of the case so forcibly before the House, should in the course of the same speech have turned again and again to the defence of free selection. He drags it in repeatedly as if there were some one at his elbow jogging his memory at short intervals. This reiteration of apology, defence, and praise is enough of itself to suggest the weakness of the cause the Treasurer went off his road to champion; and when his representations are examined, the suspicion is confirmed abundantly. Some one during the debate gave Mr. Watson credit for supplying the public freely with the information by means of which his position could be assailed; and that remark applies very well to much of this advocacy of free selection.

The Treasurer begins by saying—"It has often been asserted that our conditional land-purchase system was ruining the pastoral interests of the colony," and he proceeds to test that assertion by results. After reviewing the progress of pastoral enterprise, as shown by the immense increase during the past twenty years in the number of live stock and the produce of wool, he says those results "prove, I think, conclusively that so far as pastoral interests are concerned, the free selection provisions of our land laws have been beneficial rather than injurious," &c. What is to be done with a man who reasons in this way? In the first place no one says that free selection is ruining the pastoral interest. Everybody has seen and admitted the growth of the pastoral interest. It was a waste of words to set up this imaginary assertion for the purpose of showing, what everybody knows, that it cannot be true. The progress of pastoral enterprise proves that it can advance in spite of free selection, and talk of ruining it is out of the question. But it is another thing to say its progress proves conclusively that the influence of free selection has been beneficial. Where is the evidence? Mr. Watson does not give a scintilla. Pastoral enterprise has advanced because it has been found profitable. But free selection—so far as it has affected pastoral enterprise—has tended to diminish profits, certainly not to increase them. Is the reduction of profits likely to retard or to stimulate? Mr. Watson shows that within the period referred to nearly £15,000,000 have been invested in the purchase of Crown land. About £4,000,000 have been spent in free selection, and the rest in auction and other purchases. It will not be denied that the greater part of these auction and other purchases have been made by or on behalf of pastoral lessees. It may be taken for granted that a very large portion of the conditionally purchased land has gone into the hands of the lessees, either on the Government terms of payment, or on higher terms paid to intermediary agents. There would have been no need and no adequate warrant for these purchases by the lessees, had not the runs been thrown open to invasion by free selectors. But for that these purchases would not have been made. Free selection, therefore, has had the effect of forcing the lessees to invest in land money which they might have employed, under a better tenure, in improving their runs or the breed of their stock; and the progress of pastoral enterprise, large as it is, has, therefore, been retarded by free selection.

Mr. Watson finds in the census returns from the Registrar-General materials for praise of free selection. He points to a list of towns and villages, the majority of which did not exist when the census of 1871 was taken, whereas now their populations range from 100 to 4776, and make up a total of 84,280. "In what other country," he asks, "could more satisfactory proofs of progress of settlement be found than this? Surely the greatest opponent of free selection must admit that it is a result for which that system should get some small credit, as these townships are not confined to particular districts, but are spread over the face of the whole colony." The Treasurer is too sanguine. One complaint made by opponents of free selection is that it tends to scatter people thinly over the face of the colony, and thereby to increase the cost of government and of other civilizing agencies. Systematic settlement is advocated because it would concentrate the population in larger groups, promote civilization, and reduce the cost of it. So far as free selection has had the effect of creating numerous small villages in all parts of the colony, when the same population could have been settled under a better system in half the number, it has been a disadvantage to the people so scattered, and to the country that has to pay the cost of following them up with roads and bridges, schools, and machinery for the preservation of order and the administration of justice. But on turning to the list, it will be found to contain such towns as Cobar, Vegetable Creek, Tingha, Wickham, Hamilton, Lambton, Wallsend, Temora—towns which have had their origin in mining enterprise, not in free selection. Besides these, there are others which owe their existence specially to the extension of the railways. The whole list contains the names of 126 towns. From these may be withdrawn 27 for the reasons above stated. The population of the 27 is 42,620. The population of the remaining 99, which may perhaps be regarded more or less as free selection townships, is 41,660, which gives an average of 420 for each; but 38 of them have less than 200 each. The average population of the non-selection townships is 1578.

Mr. Watson asks whether the progress and settlement which have already taken place may be considered a fair equivalent for that part of the public estate which has been either wholly or conditionally alienated under the operations of our present land laws; and he says, "I can sincerely answer in the affirmative." What is the worth of that answer as tested by the information he has himself supplied? The pastoral progress has been rather retarded than promoted by the system of alienation. The agricultural progress since 1861 is represented by an increase of 409,000 acres under crop. Of the increase in the population, more than one-third, or 89,464, is to be found in Sydney and its suburbs. The list of townships before referred to, as having arisen altogether since 1871, or increased since then from populations of less than 100, represents a total of 84,280. Let us take one-half of that as increase during the ten years and add it to the increase in towns containing in 1871 populations of 100 and upwards. We have then a total increase of 96,677 in the population of towns and villages, exclusive of Sydney and its suburbs. The decrease in some other towns is so small as to be hardly worthy of notice in this place. But deducting this urban increase of 96,677 from the general increase of 158,023 in the country districts, we have a residue of 61,346 people scattered over the land or settled upon it during the period. Was that a fair equivalent for the expenditure of nearly £15,000,000 in land purchase, and the alienation of the millions of acres of land represented by the money? Most people will answer in the negative with sincerity equal to Mr. Watson's.

The Tories of the mother country may be pardoned for treating as a party triumph the election of a Conservative for Stafford. We were told in a telegram of two or three days ago that while the Liberals look upon the recent election as the result of the local popularity of the Conservative candidate, the Conservatives prefer to regard it as a condemnation of the home and foreign policy of the Gladstone Government. Both of these explanations are pretty much what might be expected from the sources that furnish them. In politics, as elsewhere, people are in the habit of putting the best construction on their own case and the worst on other people's. It can hardly be denied that the return of a Conservative for a constituency like Stafford looks at first sight a somewhat remarkable circumstance. No one is surprised when English Liberals lose seats in the counties, or when they are defeated in boroughs that are largely affected by agricultural interests. The Liberals have never been popular in the counties, nor have they yet earned the reputation of being the friends of the agricultural population.

Stafford, however, is a manufacturing rather than an agricultural constituency. It is a constituency which contains a large working-class element, and one in which that element has been wont to assert itself at elections. The late member for Stafford was not only a champion of the working-men; he was one of the two or three members of the House of Commons who was regarded by others—and who, we believe, regarded himself—as a working-man's representative. It is hardly possible to think of such a member as other than a Liberal; and the constituency that returned him would naturally be looked upon as a Liberal constituency in a somewhat special sense. Wherever the Liberals are beaten we might expect them to win at a borough like Stafford. A glance at the returns of the general election of 1880, however, will justify the conclusions that the explanation which Liberals give of their defeat in this quarter is the correct one. Mr. Salt, the Conservative who has just been elected in place of Mr. Macdonald, is, we suppose, the Mr. Salt who was one of the members for the constituency prior to 1880, and who was returned at the head of the poll at the general election of 1874. At the election of 1880, Mr. Macdonald, who was second on the list, only polled a hundred and fifteen votes more than Mr. Salt. The return of Mr. Salt on Mr. Macdonald's death was therefore the most natural thing that could happen, particularly if, as is intimated, the Liberal candidate was a less popular man than the Conservative one. Men are often returned for constituencies for reasons which have little to do with their politics, and there are men who are rejected in spite of their politics. According to the Liberal view, the electors of Stafford have accepted a Conservative candidate because that candidate happens to have been Mr. Salt, and if the Conservative had been anybody else, he would not have been returned at all.

This explanation, however, even if the true one, may be far from complete. Very little importance is to be attached to bye elections. Several of these contests were won by the Conservatives before the general election of 1880, and the inference from them was that the power of the Tories had suffered no decline. That inference, as we know, was wrong. At the same time, in working-men's constituencies, as well as in agricultural ones, there is a number of influences at work which give the Conservatives at least a temporary advantage. Strange as it may appear, the Tories may calculate with a good deal of certainty on the Irish vote. Although in some parts of Ireland the Irish vote against the Conservatives, in England they vote almost to a man on their side. The reason is not that there is any real sympathy between the Home Rulers and the Tories. The point of agreement between them is that both parties detest the Gladstone Government ment. If the Tories had been in power, so far as coercion goes, they would have adopted just the policy which has been pursued by the present Government. Indeed, the chief complaint of the Conservatives has been that the coercive policy of the present Government has been too mild. If they had been in power, they have said, they would have put down Irish agitation with a high hand. And, doubtless, they would have attempted this. But although the Conservatives complain that the line of the Government has been far too feeble, for electioneering purposes some members of the party express unbounded sympathy with those who urge that the policy of the Government has been too severe. Several of the Conservative candidates who have won victories at bye elections have joined the Irish voters in their protest against the continued imprisonment of the suspects. In this way they have gained an advantage over the Government candidates. Further, it must be remembered that English Radicals have opposed the Coercion Acts as well as Irish Home Rulers. Papers like the Pall Mall Gazette and the Spectator, and Radical politicians like Mr. COWAN, have set their faces against the extreme measures which have been resorted to in Ireland. English working-men have a hereditary dislike to anything that has the appearance of tyrannical legislation; and to them the Irish Coercion Acts appear to be very tyrannical indeed. The steps taken to uphold the law have inspired them with a sympathy for the law-breaker. Conservative tacticians have not been slow to perceive this, nor have they shrunk from the task of using it for party purposes. All this is not very moral perhaps. There is a good deal in the tactics of extreme political partizans in England which strikes an onlooker as very far from moral. But the maxim that all is fair in politics is as commonly respected in old countries as in young ones. The maxim seems to be far too generally respected in English political circles just now.

Besides the real or assumed sympathy with the Irish malcontents there is the fair trade cry, which is so apt to catch the electors in a manufacturing community. "Candidate after candidate," says a home contemporary, "in towns as well as counties, defends fair trade or reciprocity, or, like Mr. LOWTHER, open protection, the farmers or the workmen approve more or less heartily, and the seat is lost to the Liberal cause. In several large boroughs there are signs of the growth of a kind of passion for a war of tariffs, while in medium boroughs and country districts we never take up a local paper without reading columns of argument against the 'existing' free trade." Conservative chiefs like Sir STAFFORD NORTHCOTE profess to believe in free trade in the abstract. They would be in favour of free trade, that is, if other people were in favour of it. But since the Americans and the French have declared for protection they contend that it is worthy of consideration whether England should not declare for a modified form of protection by way of punishing these wayward foreigners. This is the doctrine that has caught a large number of artizans, as well as farmers, and it helps us to understand the result of such elections as the one in question.

Protracted as the debates have been on the Licensing Bill, it would seem from the discussion of Thursday night that more light can still be thrown upon some aspects of this many-sided question. Mr. FARNELL told the committee that "he knew one merchant who had 300 houses under his control, another who had 250, and a third who had 180, while others had smaller numbers." If that refers to the police district of Sydney, it accounts for 730 out of the total number of 883 licensed houses existing within that area. But probably it refers to the whole colony, for which the number of licensed houses is 3347, and even then the proportion is 22 per cent. of the whole concentrated in the hands of three men. Unless Mr. FARNELL has good warrant for his statement he will be accused of exaggerating. The brewers and spirit dealers cannot hold the retail licenses; but it is quite common both here and in England for them to own the houses, and have some lien over the business which makes it absolutely their own, and the man in charge, in spite of his license, merely their paid servant. Sir HENRY PARKES must have been singularly unaware of the details of the trade not to have known this to be the case; and the amendment he proposed but afterwards withdrew on Thursday night might easily be made a shelter for the whole monopoly. It is only fair that publicans should be able to borrow upon their effects as well as other tradespeople; but it is not desirable that this right of property should be made the means of virtually transferring even one-fifth, not to say four-fifths, of the total number of retail licenses held throughout the colony into the hands of spirit merchants and brewers. The matter deserves all the inquiry the PREMIER promised, and if Mr. FARNELL cannot make good his very sweeping assertion some other evidence may be forthcoming. In regard to the altered licensed fees for brewers, they still fall below the demands of equity. The big brewer of 100,000 barrels per annum will pay £10 upon the first 100 barrels, and £5 for each 100 barrels beyond that, or £4995 on 99,900 barrels, making a total annual payment of £5005, which is equal to only an inappreciable fraction over 1s. per barrel, or one-third of a penny per gallon. The small brewer who does not exceed the minimum of 100 barrels per annum will pay at the rate of 2s. per barrel, or two-thirds of a penny per gallon. The difference will be increasingly in favour of the large manufacturer all the way upwards from the minimum quantity. As a tax the fees will not fall upon the consumer, for they are too small to be distributed, although they may take effect upon the quality of the article consumed. Are they to be regarded, then, as a restriction upon an industry? If so, they should be discussed on such ground, and that opens up a wide field of debate.

With the return of political tranquillity in Victoria the colony appears to be pulling itself together, and enjoying a measure of its former prosperity. On Saturday last upwards of £30,000 worth of land was sold by auction in Melbourne for suburban residences alone, and the reports that reach us daily of the commercial transactions generally indicate a healthy tone that could hardly have been anticipated a year or two since, when the colony was passing through the troubles of prolonged political excitement, disastrous deadlocks, and utopian Reform Bills that only served the purpose of keeping needy politicians in power. One Minister of the Crown declared that the object of the Reform Bill which his Ministry were parading before the electors was to enable them to "put their hands in the public purse in an easy and comfortable manner." Another declared that the Ministry had their "hands upon the throat of capital," and the tenor of nearly every Ministerial deliverance was the "bursting up" of capitalists' estates throughout the whole country. It is not to be wondered at that under such a regime capitalists should lose confidence in the commercial stability of the colony, and that locked-up capital should lead to unemployed labour and depression in business circles. Latterly there has been a remarkable change for the better. The Melbourne Daily Telegraph states that "property is changing hands at increased rates; building operations were never more active than at the present moment; there is a marked revival of energy in the mining districts; capital is being cheerfully subscribed for new ventures, and employment is plentiful in almost every department of industry." Should the efforts which are being made to place the fiscal system of Victoria on a sounder footing, and enable the masses to purchase in the cheapest markets without being taxed to make the fortunes of a few manufacturers, be successful, we shall look for a return of the colony's prosperous days.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE defeat of the Irish League party at the municipal elections at Cork is regarded in some quarters as an indication that the influence of Charles Stuart Parnell and his followers is on the wane. Alongside this defeat, however, must be placed the reported revival of agrarian outrages. The lawless and savage spirit which recent legislation by the Imperial Parliament was intended to repress appears to be as dangerous as ever. The programme put forward in the speech from the throne, at the opening of the German Reichstag, is meeting with so much opposition in the new House that Prince Bismarck has found it necessary to declare that, in the event of a failure of his projects, he will retire from the direct control of internal affairs, in favour of a Vice-Chancellor, but announces his intention of holding to the post of Minister of Foreign Affairs. From one of our cablegrams of this morning, it would seem that the Russian Government has not yet withdrawn its claim to have the war indemnity due by Turkey made chargeable to the general revenue of the Sultan's empire. It was stated a week or two ago that the Russian representative at Constantinople had withdrawn the claim, under pressure from the representatives of the British and other foreign bondholders; but the announcement evidently wanted qualifying in some way.

THE consumption of water in the metropolis during the late dry days has so unduly increased the drain upon its resources, as to cause some uneasiness in the water department lest the citizens should be returning to the wasteful habits that characterized the pre-drought times. It may be well to remind the public that the rainfall up to the present has only yielded 40 inches, which is 10 inches below the average fall. While the above rainfall is probably enough for all uses, it will not be adequate if waste be encouraged. Residents in elevated parts, to whom the supply has been very unsatisfactory for the last twelve days, may be informed that their present privation is due to the impossibility for the present of utilizing the Lachlan tunnel, which is undergoing alterations in order to keep out the tar taint which obtained access to its waters from the tarred metal in Oxford-street. The repairs will be completed next week, and the tunnel will resume its duties, when those districts suffering from short supplies now will be restored to their ordinary rate. In addition to the disablement of the tunnel, which threw more work on the Botany engines, one of those engines gave out last week, but was speedily repaired, and with the exception that it has to pull up against lost time, is as good as ever.

THE following is the minute of his Excellency the Governor of Fiji respecting the terms on which the importation of coolie labour will be permitted in that colony:—"The Governor takes the earliest opportunity of informing those employers who have applied for Indian immigrants that he has received to-day a telegram from the Secretary of State informing him that her Majesty's Government is unable to sanction a loan for the introduction of Indian coolies, and that if this immigration be renewed the employers will be required to pay two-thirds of its cost on allotment. It is impossible to state exactly what this cost will be until further information is obtained as to passage rates and the present expense of recruiting. The Governor estimates it, however (including an allowance for the return passages of one-fourth of the immigrants) at £25 per adult, in which case the fee to be paid on allotment would be £16 13s. 4d."

THE annual shot practice of the New South Wales Volunteer Artillery took place on Saturday afternoon, at the Middle Head batteries, under the direction of Colonel Roberts, commanding the New South Wales Artillery, and Major Wells, commanding the Volunteer Artillery. About 150 officers and men, under the command of the latter officer, mustered at Dawes Battery at half-past 2 o'clock, whence they proceeded by steamer to Cobbler's Beach, and, headed by the band of the regiment, marched to the fortifications. The practice was carried out with the 68-pounder smooth-bore guns at 1700 yards' range, the target being placed a short distance off the south reef. The hollow shot used was at first somewhat detrimental to accuracy of aim, inasmuch as hitherto solid shot, and consequently heavier charges, have been used. However, as every man present had to lay a gun and fire it, each took advantage of the experience gained by his predecessor, and, notwithstanding the strong wind blowing, for which due allowance had to be made in sighting, the practice soon became excellent. Indeed, with few exceptions, nearly every shot would have struck a ship, had that been the object aimed at, and one shot actually carried away the flag from the target. In consequence of the large number of rounds to be fired, the practice was not concluded till nearly 7 o'clock. The regiment, on returning to the Circular Quay, was formed up in line and addressed by Major Wells, who complimented the men on their practice, and conveyed to them the gratification expressed by Colonel Roberts at the excellence of their firing. The men were then dismissed.

THE foundation-stone of a Congregational church was laid at Waverley on Saturday afternoon by Mr. Josiah Mullens. A large number of persons, including several clergymen, were present, and some addresses were delivered. Particulars of the proceedings will be found in another column.

A FATAL accident occurred at Darling Harbour on Saturday morning, at about 20 minutes past 9 o'clock, to a man named Crocker, belonging to the ketch Alfred and Edward, lying in the stream at the southern side of Pyrmont Bridge. Crocker was observed by a man named George Drew trying to get his boat off from the vessel in order to recover his hat, which had blown off into the water, but the boat drifted away from him, and he fell into the water. The force of the wind caused the boat to drift rapidly away towards the bridge, when Drew last caught sight of the unfortunate man. Some men on board a steamer near discovered Crocker clinging to the boat. They tried to resuscitate him, but without avail, and the body, which was still warm, was taken to the Infirmary, where Dr. Sinclair pronounced life to be extinct.

THERE are two deaths from smallpox to report since Saturday, viz., that of George Wood, residing at No. 10, Jones-street, Ultimo, who was attended privately by a medical gentleman, and whose case was not reported to the authorities; and that of Georgiana M'Culloch, of Pyrmont, who died early yesterday (Sunday) morning. The case of the youth George Wood claims the attention of the Government for reasons which will be obvious to those who read the subjoined report of the Board of Health. Whilst the Government are spending large sums of money in their efforts to isolate cases as they occur, and prevent the spread of the infection, the inmates of a house, in which is a bad case, are allowed to go about the city and attend to their business. The efforts of the Government and police to check the disease and stamp it out are thus frustrated. As the Board of Health say in their report, the present serious outbreak at Pyrmont is believed to be traceable to a case of smallpox that existed but was not reported to the authorities. The Board of Health's report for yesterday is as follows:—"The following patients were visited by the Government medical staff on the 25th and 26th instant, and are reported as progressing favourably:—Henry and John Hayes, Plunket-street; Henry, Alice, and Arthur Hancock, 20, Hunt-street; Mr. Jenkins, 145, Liverpool-street; Thomas Smith, 181, Sussex-street; Mrs. Atkins, Burwood; and Sergeant Powell, Mr. and Mrs. M'Farland, and their son, and Mrs. Bourke, of Pyrmont. Georgina M'Culloch, of Pyrmont, and Rebecca Hewett, of 78, Liverpool-street, are still seriously ill; the former has been supplied with a nurse. The houses of Mr. Kirchen, of Campbell-street, and Mrs. Russell, were also visited, and the inmates found to be in good health. Alexander Campbell, of Cooper-street, Waterloo, died on the 24th instant, and was buried by the ambulance corps with the usual precautions. The physician who visited the camp reports that the sick child is better, and that the other inmates are in good health. The executive members of the Board of Health received information from the police on Saturday morning that Dr. Markey had reported the death of a man from smallpox at No. 10, Jones-street, Ultimo. The deceased was taken ill on the 16th instant, and Dr. Markey attended him every alternate day until his death. Dr. Markey describes the case as a very severe one, and says he refrained from reporting it at the request of the patient and his friends. Upon the receipt of this information one of the Government medical staff was requested to visit the house and report upon the circumstances. One of the physicians immediately went and reported in the evening that the facts were as stated by the police, and in the history of the case (which is furnished in every instance), he gives the following additional facts:—The deceased George Wood was 20 years of age; he worked at the Castlemaine Foundry up to the 16th instant and was a Sunday school teacher at St. Bartholomew's schools, Pyrmont, and was the only member of the family who was unvaccinated. It was known in the house on the 21st instant that the disease was smallpox. The brother of deceased has worked up to the 25th at the Castlemaine Foundry. George Wood was buried at the Haslem's Creek Cemetery on Saturday evening with the usual precautions. The house and inmates have been placed in quarantine. This case necessarily recalls to mind the case of Mr. Denford, which was the first of the present serious outbreak at Pyrmont, and that his case was also not made known to the authorities until he was convalescent. He resided with his brother, of whose family no fewer than five took the disease, which further extended to two persons in the next house. Georgina M'Culloch succumbed to the disease early on the morning of the 27th, and was buried at Haslem's Creek."

A FEW days ago a correspondent suggested the establishment of a Liedertafel in Sydney, on a basis similar to that of the well-known and highly-successful musical society in Melbourne, suggesting that the Christmas visit of some 60 of its members to this city might be seized upon as the occasion for supplying our notoriously deficient musical organization, or at least of making a commencement in that direction. Our correspondent was slightly behind the time. In our issue of the 16th instant it was stated that "steps had been taken during some weeks past to form a similar organization here, several rehearsals having been held and a provisional committee of well-known amateurs appointed to draw up rules, &c." We are gratified now to be able to state that a number of experienced gentlemen have combined to form a society having for its object the promotion of male voice part-singing, and the giving of high-class subscription concerts, in fact to form an English Liedertafel. The system, as explained by the circular issued by the promoters, consists of performing and unperforming members, all subscribers, the performing members composing the male voice chorus. The concerts are of two kinds, alternating, the one being for ladies and gentlemen, the other, partaking of a social character, for gentlemen members only. At each of these the best available talent (vocal and instrumental, amateur and professional) appears, completing a programme, the backbone of which is the society's chorus. We learn that a strong body of trained voices is available, and that the movement is being cordially supported by leading merchants and other citizens.

A CORRESPONDENT writes:—"I notice in Saturday morning's issue of your paper, on page 6, a paragraph referring to a talking canary, and stating that, as far as can be ascertained, there is no record of a similar case. As I infer from your letter that such a case is a source of interest to some portion of the public, I mention for their information that the late Mr. Edward Hill, of Woollahra, was in possession of a canary which has many times talked in my presence."

THE Infirmary items are:—A man named William Mackay, found in an unconscious state on board the steamship Wakatipu, and who was said to have fallen across a chain of the vessel, was admitted on Saturday afternoon. Wm. Brown, 35 years of age, residing at Glebe Point road, was brought in on Saturday, suffering from a severe wound of the left hand, extending from the back of the hand between the first finger and thumb for about two and a-half inches long, and three-quarters of an inch deep, caused by his getting it caught in a chaff-cutting machine. He was very weak from loss of blood. Wm. Brennan was treated for dislocation of the shoulder, caused through a man knocking him down with a broom for fun.

OUR BEAUTIFUL CITY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—One of the common questions asked in dusty weather is—Of what use are our aldermen? If you notice, one great salient recommendation for a candidate for municipal honours is that he is a "practical man." I believe the whole body is composed of what are commonly called "practical men." Like everybody else, I can only ask, and echo, I think, will answer,—What have practical men done for us for the last 25 years? During the whole of that time they have refused to use salt water for the streets, the great objections being injury to iron goods and to eyes, as if an innocuous neutral saline were more injurious to the eyes than minute particles of bluestone—if so, what about salt water baths—and as if the small, if any, damage to iron goods can be compared to the fearful damage to soft goods. What about seaport cities?

The Town Hall job, the difficulty with the Government about the streets after their liberal treatment of the Corporation, the state of the streets generally, the city baths at Watson's Bay, and other like weaknesses, induce me to ask is Sydney in such a benighted state that there cannot be found in each ward three educated, non-practical, reputable citizens who do not murder the Queen's English, and who cannot manage corporation matters worse than now? There are many such men, but while you have public spouting, and so much public shouting, such men will never come to the front.

Yours, &c., CIVIS.

According to calculations made by the Medical Academy of Paris, there are at the present time 189,000 doctors scattered over the world. Of these there are 65,000 in the United States, 26,000 in France, 32,000 in Germany and Austria, 35,000 in great Britain and its colonies, 10,000 in Italy, and 5000 in Spain. Putting aside pamphlets and memoirs innumerable, it is estimated that 120,000 works have been published on medical subjects. Among the writers 2800 are American, 2300 French, 2300 German and Austrian, and 2100 English.

Its favourable action on the system is renovating; it checks progressive emaciation, restores the yielding health, rebuilds, as it were, the tottering frame, and brings about a most remarkable and salutary change in all the vital functions." THE NEW TURCO-GREEK FRONTIER.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 25.

A difficulty has arisen between Turkey and Greece with reference to the question of a post-office on the frontier of the country recently ceded to Greece by the Treaty of Berlin. The Turkish Government has ordered the closing of the post-office in question.

LATER.

Further particulars which have transpired regarding the fresh difficulty which has arisen between Turkey and Greece modify to some extent the accounts previously published. The dispute in question has occurred in connection with the claim made by Greece to maintain a separate post-office in the larger Turkish towns. The Porte having demanded the closing of the post-office on the ground that it had taken the foreign postal service into its own hands, the Greek Minister, acting under the instructions of his Government, refused. Upon this, orders were at once given to the Turkish officials to close the Greek post-office in Stamboul, and this has accordingly been done to-day.

At the same, time he said that he had no intention of relinquishing the post of Minister of Foreign Affairs, which, under all circumstances, he would continue to hold for the present.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, SATURDAY.

The Government intend to make a strenuous effort to close the session at Christmas, or as soon thereafter as possible, and will propose to the House to sit on Mondays and extend the hours of sitting on Tuesdays.

Certain alterations have been decided on in the Water Conservation Bill, the object being to meet the opinions expressed by members in regard to all diversion of rivers, water courses, &c., which it is thought will facilitate an early conclusion of the debate. The chief feature of the bill is leaving municipalities to provide their local water supply, the State advancing money for the purpose at 4½ per cent., on plans being approved of by the State. It is probable that Messrs. Gordon and Black's suggestion for the best means of utilizing the resources of the various districts will be generally adopted.

A motion testifying his fitness to represent the electorate of Carcoar was carried unanimously. Mr. Baker addressed about 200 inhabitants last night at Mount M'Donald. Owing to several interruptions, the meeting was adjourned to a room at Tanner's Hotel, where about sixty voters were present. Several very searching questions were put, but more particulary as to the non-issue of leases. Mr. Baker answered the questions in a satisfactory manner. Those present pledged themselves to use every endeavour to secure the candidate's return. Mr. Crichton, who was in the chair, visits Lumpy Swamp and Brown's Creek to-day.

Another mysterious disappearance of a valuable picture is recorded in the English press. The celebrated picture, known as the "Monarch of the Meadows," painted by Mr. T. Sydney Cooper, R.A., and the property of Mr. Allcroft, of Lancaster-gate, Hyde Park, has been destroyed or stolen under extraordinary circumstances. On the morning of September 13 a room in Mr. Allcroft's house, in which the picture was standing during the general repair of the building, was discovered to be in flames, but the fire brigade were at once summoned, and the conflagration was rapidly got under. On examination, however, it was found that the picture had been cut out of the frame, either before or after the fire had commenced. The police were at once communicated with, and the most searching investigation is being made into the matter. There is the most distinct evidence that the canvas was cut from the frame, but there are also signs of a tallow candle having been applied to the lower portion of the frame, and two theories have therefore obtained favour with the authorities. Seeing the jagged and unprofessional manner in which the canvas has been cut, it is thought that possibly it is the work of some vindictive person wishing to inflict an injury upon Mr. Allcroft, and that the painting was cut up, and being set light to on the floor, so caused the fire in the room. The other supposition is that the culprit, having cut away the picture, set fire to the frame in order to destroy all evidence of the robbery. The surprising part of the whole affair is the fact that no traces are to be found of either an entrance or an exit of the house having been obtained. During the absence from town of Mr. Allcroft there were only two maidservants staying in the house, though during the daytime there have been some twenty or thirty workmen on the premises. On the evening of the 12th September the house was made thoroughly secure, and as there is no evidence of any of the bolts or bars having been tampered with, the whole affair is wrapped in the completest mystery. The police are of opinion that the fire must have smouldered for some time before it was discovered, as the smoke has penetrated into the drawing-room, which adjoins the room in which the picture stood, and entirely ruined some valuable marble statues. Another extraordinary fact is that a quantity of canvas which had been used for wiping up turpentine, &c., and which had been thrown over the handrail at the top of the stairs during the painting, was found smouldering behind the picture-frame, and that a portion of the same canvas was discovered next morning with two small burns in it, lying in a cupboard on the basement. The painting, which was in the best style of the celebrated artist, was certainly the largest he ever executed, was nine feet high by seven broad, and was valued at £5000. The subject was a group of a bull, cow, and calf, the figures being nearly life-size. The picture was exhibited in the Royal Academy some years ago, and it is to be hoped, in the interests of all true lovers of art, that the perpetrators of the outrage will be brought to justice.

THE ENGLISH ELEVEN v. TWENTY-TWO OF NEWCASTLE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEWCASTLE, SATURDAY.

When the stumps were drawn on Friday the All-England Eleven were out for 118, and the Newcastle team had commenced their innings, twelve wickets having fallen for 34. A boisterous northerly wind blew along the ground on this (Saturday) morning, militating materially against the attendance, which was only moderate. Play was resumed soon after 11 o'clock, when Simon and Wood managed to stop yesterday's mortality by holding the wickets up for an hour, but scoring very little. The wickets again played badly, the ball getting up high, causing the loss of nearly all the wickets in slips, especially off Peate, who got nearly all remaining wickets. Tracy played a good innings for 14, not out. The innings terminated for 79. The following are the scores in detail, embodying those of the previous day:—

Play was resumed after luncheon, Ullyett and Barlow again commencing at the wickets, on behalf of the Eleven, to Webb's and Tracy's bowling. The spectators now numbered strongly, in spite of the threatening weather, about 3000 visiting the ground. There was a marked improvement in the play of the local team to-day, both in fielding and batting; and the Englishmen were consequently soon disposed of in the second innings, and would have been defeated had time permitted. Webb was again most successful with his slows, obtaining seven wickets for 34 runs. Midwinter did most of the scoring to-day, making two magnificent hits off Tracy and one off Webb for six each clean out of the ground, but in attempting another off Webb, he was well caught in field by Pilling. Peate was the only other who got into double figures, most of the others being caught in field off Webb. Bates again exhibited good cricket, and was splendidly caught in long field. Shrewsbury is playing somewhat out of form, and has not shown much batting as yet. Pilling plays very nicely, and deserves a better place in the team than tenth man. The innings terminated for 75, leaving the local team 116 to get to win, and two hours to do it. At 4 o'clock the district team essayed the task, Peate and Midwinter resuming the bowling, the former with the wind. A good stand was made by Freeman and Smith, and Webb, who followed, played a capital innings for 21. He was bowled by Barlow just after Ulyett had badly missed him in off field. Runs came very slowly, and several changes were made in the bowling, Emmett and Ulyett being tried at Midwinter's end, Barlow in place of Peate, and Midwinter again going on. J. Bignell soon ran up 13. Simon played a long innings for 6 (not out), with A. Bignell, when time was called, the score then standing 10 wickets for 76. The Eleven fielded on their mettle, and tried hard to prevent a defeat. The following are the scores:—

CRICKET.

THE HOLDSWORTH-GARDYNE CUP.—The match between the Albert and University clubs for the Holdsworth-Gardyne trophy was continued on the Association Ground on Saturday afternoon; and although the weather was boisterous and uninviting, there were fully 1000 spectators present, who watched the contest with great interest. When the stumps were drawn on the previous Saturday the University in their second innings had scored 125 without the loss of a wicket, and had passed the score made by the Alberts in their first innings. Jones and Allen resumed their places at the wickets about 2.30 p.m. to the bowling of Massie and H. Moses, and both men being in excellent form runs were made rapidly, and a good many four hits were placed to the credit of each. After 160 runs had been announced Massie handed the ball to Tindall, and a few minutes later D. Gregory went on at the southern wicket. The batsmen, however, played with plenty of confidence, and shortly before 200 runs went up A. Gregory was tried with the ball vice Tindall, and Allen gave a chance to H. Moses at mid-off, which was not taken. The telegraph-board soon showed 200 runs, and Berghoff was then tried at the northern end without effect. A round of applause announced that Jones had reached the "century." At 2.24 another change in the bowling was decided upon, and Fletcher went on with underhand "lobs." Jones was nearly stumped off the second ball, and when the score had reached 231 the University colt placed a ball from Fletcher into H. Moses' hands at mid-off, and retired after a splendid innings for 107. 1-107-231. Powell followed, and after three runs had been added to the score, Allen was caught and bowled by Fletcher, and retired for an admirably compiled 111. 2-111-234. Garrett now joined Powell, but the companionship was not of long continuance, as Powell spooned a ball from Fletcher between the wickets, and was caught by the bowler. 3-4-245. Teece, who succeeded him, sent the first ball he received from Fletcher skyward, and was caught by Tindall. 4-0-245. Coates filled the vacancy, but his companion hit the next ball to mid-on, and the chance was accepted by Berghoff. 5-9-245. Wright then joined Coates, and the pair, by careful play, brought the score up to 270 when Coates was bowled by Massie. 6-10-270. Faithfull came next, but did not stop long at the wickets, for in trying to hit a straight one from Massie he was clean bowled. 7-3-278. Sly went in, but in the same over was also bowled—8-0-278—making way for M'Mahon, and shortly afterwards a double change of bowling took place, D. Gregory relieving Fletcher, and Crane taking the ball from Massie. M'Mahon, after contributing 3, tried to get a straight one from Gregory to leg, and lost his wicket—9-3-293—and Fuller succeeded him. Amid a round of applause, 300 runs were posted, and the batsmen continued together for some time longer, scoring freely until the score stood at 328, when Wright, after a good innings for 48, was caught by A. Gregory off Fletcher, who had just gone on. 10-48-328. Fuller carried his bat out for a serviceable innings of 18. The Alberts tried no less than nine bowlers during the innings, and strange to say Fletcher was the only one who proved at all successful, his bowling, aided by strong southerly wind and the indifference of the batsmen, proving very destructive. With 213 runs required to win, Massie and A. Gregory were sent in by the Alberts, and in Jones's first over Massie made four successive leg hits to the fence. Powell bowled from the northern end, and after thirty runs had been compiled Garrett went on in place of Jones, who had been bowling badly. Scoring, however, still went on until 54 had been put together, when A. Gregory spooned a ball from Powell over his head, and was caught by the wicket keeper. 1-16-54. H. Moses followed, but after placing 8 runs to his credit, played a ball from Powell on to his wicket. 2-8-71. Fletcher filled the vacancy but did not remain long at wickets, and was caught by Garrett off Faithfull, who had relieved the first named player. 3-2-90. A. Docker who succeeded him was immediately given out leg before wicket to Powell—4-0-91—and D. Gregory joined Massie. The batsmen now made a stand, and at half-past 6, when the stumps were drawn, the score stood at 107, Massie and D. Gregory being not out with 68 and 8 respectively. The bowling of the University was fair, and their fielding all round excellent. The match will be finished on Wednesday afternoon, and play will commence at 4 o'clock, the Alberts having 106 to get to win. The following are the scores:—

WARWICK V. CARLTON.—These clubs met in the Domain last Saturday afternoon, for a one day match, and, as is usually the case with one day matches, the result was a draw in favour of Warwick, who went in first and put together 113 runs before they were disposed of, a very good score indeed for the Domain ground, as the wickets are far from being good. Rigg and Apperly each scored 27, and M'Donald, Scanlon, and Hiddilston also made double figures. All the Carlton bowlers were tried, and Toohey, with slows, secured best average. The Carltons commenced their innings at a quarter to 5, and when time was called, had lost eight wickets for 70, Clayton being top score with 21 not out, obtained in excellent style. The bowling and fielding of the Warwick team was very creditable, Ogilvy especially being in good form with the ball. The following are the scores:—

Our correspondent at Cootamundra telegraphs that the Cootamundra Cricket Club played the Yass team for the Coman's Cup at Yass, on Saturday, defeating them by 25 runs. Two cups are now held by the Cootamundra club.

SYDNEY AMATEUR SAILING CLUB.

The second of this season's series of races in connection with the above club were sailed last Saturday afternoon. One race being for the 5th class, or 16 feet dingies, and the other for the miscellaneous, or boats not otherwise racing in any particular class, and were owned and sailed by members of the club. The southerly "buster" that came up on Friday evening, continued to blow with unabated violence on Saturday morning, making it exceedingly doubtful whether the dingies at least could venture out at all, the weather was so boisterous, but towards midday the wind lulled a little, and in the afternoon the undaunted competitors were enabled to show out with their tiny crafts. There being too great a "lump" on down the harbour, the starter decided to alter the course of each race from the usual fixed one. The 16 feet boats were sent away to a good start, at 13 minutes past 3 o'clock from the moorings, Farm Cove, round La Hogue, lying in Neutral Bay, round Clark Island round flagboat off Fort Macquarie, round La Hogue and Clark Island, and back to flagboat. Four boats took up their positions at the moorings in the following order:—Nereid, Mr. T. W. Raymond, No. 1; Ouida, Mr. A. Carmichael, No. 2; Ettie, Mr. S. Wilson, No. 3; Violet, Mr. W. Brown, No. 4. The Endymion was about ten minutes late in starting, and, after going once round the course retired from the race. In rounding the flagboat the first time the Ettie led the Violet by nearly a minute and a half, who in her turn left the Nereid over four minutes in the rear. The Ouida capsized before reaching Clark Island. The finish of the race resulted in a win for the Ettie, which passed the flagboat at 4h. 27m. 30s., with Violet 4h. 28m., and Nereid 4h. 34m. 10s. In the miscellaneous race the crews of the boats started were limited to five hands. The Adelphi and the Ethel were the only ones that put in an appearance, and went from the moorings, Farm Cove, round the light ship, and Sows and Pigs, round Shark Island, round flag boat off Fort Macquarie round Shark Island, and back to the flagboat. The Adelphi got away with the start with a slight lead, owing to the Ethel's jib getting foul. The flagboat was rounded as follows:—Adelphi at 4h. 45m., Ethel at 4h. 48m. 27s., and was passed at the finish of the race by the Adelphi, sailed by Mr. Fitzhardinge, at 5h. 78m. 42s.; and by the Ethel, sailed by Mr. Doran, at 5h. 33m. 5s. The Ethel won the race, having a handicap of five minutes for a leading wind from the Adelphi, scratch.

The North Shore Regatta, which should have finished on Saturday, did not come off in consequence of rough weather. The balance of races which were not competed for on September 19, will, therefore, have to be decided on some future day.

Our Goulburn correspondent telegraphs that a hurling match took place on Saturday between teams of Irishmen and Australians, which resulted in a victory for the latter.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRE ROYAL.

A great many people anticipated that Gilbert and Sullivan's latest opera, the æsthetic one, "Patience," would not be appreciated here, seeing that, as the æsthetic craze has not reached the colonies, the satire of the work would not be understood; but this idea was completely dispelled by the audience which assembled at the Theatre Royal on Saturday night to witness its first production on the Australian stage; for every point in the "consummately utter" and "intensely precious" dialogue was echoed by a burst of laughter from before the curtain, and the music was so much enjoyed that not only had several numbers to be repeated, but two had to be re-repeated. Rarely has any work, dramatic or musical, been so well given on the occasion of its first performance as this was, and indeed we do not remember the first production of anything of the kind in Sydney which would bear comparison with it. The principals acted and sang their parts as if they had been engaged at them for weeks, the choruses were—as choruses rarely are—faultless, and the stage management was very complete. The consequence was that people were able to enjoy to the utmost the peculiar vein of keen satire which the dialogue of the opera embodies, and to appreciate the skill with which this dialogue has been wedded to harmonious music. It is superfluous now to speak of the dialogue, for almost everybody who cares for satirical humour has by this time heard of or read it; and of the music it is sufficient to say that it is of the light, tuneful, masterly character so well exemplified in the previous operas written and composed by Gilbert and Sullivan, and that in some respects it shows an advance on the composers' previous efforts. And so it is, after all, only natural that, as "Patience"—itself a clever work—was well performed, and was mounted with liberality and good taste which have never been exceeded here, the first performance should have been a success which more than realized expectation.

In the performance of works of this kind good acting and good singing are equally necessary, and in both these respects Mr. Howard Vernon, as Bunthorne, showed to more advantage than anyone else in the cast. His appearance—lank, limp, and angular, bilious in complexion, his dark hair frizzled out in the Botticelli style, and his close-fitting dress of that russet brown tint favoured by æsthetes—was exactly that of the Maudle and Postlethwaite of Punch; his acting was the spirited appropriate working-out of an intelligent conception of the part of the fleshly poet; and though his voice is not without an occasional harsh strain, it was always in tune, and every note of the Bunthorne music was sung. The duets with Jane and Grosvenor were encored twice, and during the evening the laughter and applause evoked by Mr. Vernon's efforts were frequent and hearty. Of the others, Miss Alice Rees, as Patience, sang best; and Miss Maggie Moore, who was the Lady Jane, acted with most effect. Miss Rees, in her pretty countrified toilette, looked like Perdita in Bohemia, and her fresh, pure, young voice carolled out its music with delightful ease. There is this charm in her singing that there is no perceptible effort in it, and that her highest notes are perfectly produced, and without any apparent strain upon her vocal organ. The songs, "I cannot tell what this love may be," and "Love is a plaintive song," were so well given that the audience insisted upon a repetition of the latter verse of each. But her acting was uneven—at times very weak and stiff, and at times forcibly natural. The defects in it were perhaps due to nervousness, and if this be so, and Miss Rees repair them, her impersonation of Patience will be a complete and an artistic one. Miss Maggie Moore, on the other hand, acted infinitely better than she sang, but her clever acting doubled the effect of her songs. Her keen bright wit, the magnetic sympathy which she always seems to establish between herself and her audience, and the talent which enables her to impart to every sentence she speaks its appropriate meaning, made her Lady Jane a performance of the highest merit in comic opera. Her costume, æsthetic to the last, is a study of half tones in colour, curious forms in ornamentation, and wonderfully draped folds in arrangement; and the sight of such a majestic being as she appears, performing extravagant obligatos on a fat violoncello is one of the funniest things in the opera. Signor Verdi as Archibald Grosvenor was what an æsthetic artist might call "a nocturne" in black velvet and flashing steel buttons. As "the Apostle of Simplicity" he acted with natural force, and not one of the absurdly self-complacent speeches Archibald has to make was without its effect. The music suits his voice, and so the song "The Magnet and the Churn," and the duets with Bunthorne and Patience respectively, were evidently enjoyed. The important part of Colonel Calverley was allotted to Signor Riccardi, whose fine voice and clear enunciation are pleasant to listen to, and who gained an encore for his "patter" song, "The Heavy Dragoon." Mr. Beaumont's Duke of Dunstable would have been a capital performance had he not chosen to introduce, in the first act, an utterly unnecessary and pointless song, which he was unable to remember in its entirety. The opera of "Patience" is long enough already—indeed, the first act plays about an hour and a half—and the well-finished work of Mr. Gilbert might well be spared the touch of "the improver's" hand. Mr. J. F. Forde as Major Murgatroyd made a worthy third in the trio of officers, and the corresponding triad among the rapturous maidens Angela, Miss Fanny Liddiard; Saphir, Miss Lillie Forde; and Ella, Miss Bessie Royal, did well. The manner in which the maidens and dragoons sang their choruses, and the excellence with which the orchestra worked, were in the highest degree creditable to Signor Giorza, and the two clever stage sets by Mr. Clint looked very picturesque. The enthusiastic manner in which "Patience" was received on Saturday night augurs it a long run.

THE OPERA HOUSE.

Mr. James Carden, who played in Sydney several years ago, appeared at the Opera House on Saturday evening. This actor's abilities on his former appearance were exceedingly well marked, and his performances were accepted with wide-spread gratification. Those who admired him then will be glad to learn that his powers appear in no way diminished; he still plays with vigour and judgment, and is certain to again acquire a large measure of popularity. Miss Marston Leigh appeared with him. It was the first occasion on which this lady had played to a Sydney audience. She has brought with her unquestionable credentials, which she acquired in England, as to her capabilities, and judging from the qualities she displayed in this instance, it may be admitted unreservedly that she is eminently fitted to hold a high position amongst the most talented actresses that have visited this city, and is likely to be held in great esteem here. Added to considerable dramatic ability she possesses a pleasing presence, a graceful deportment, and a sweet-toned sympathising voice, while she exercises a capacity for singing which is seldom associated with histrionic art. Her appearance on the stage was greeted with hearty applause. She was also favoured with a shower of bouquets, and for the time appeared an unusual favourite. The play was Tom Taylor's "Fool's Revenge," which is full of interesting details, and was very attractively placed on the stage. Mr. Carden played the part of Bertuccio, who devotes the latter part of his life to avenging the abduction of his wife by a Count Malatesta. Miss Leigh appeared as Fiordelisa, the unhappy man's daughter, whose duty, like Desdemona's, is divided between obedience to her father and love for a poet named Dell'Aquila. The other leading parts were sustained by Mr. Boothman, Mr. J. H. Martin, Mr. E. Holloway, Mr. C. Seagrave, Mr. J. A. Paterson, Mrs. Holloway, and Miss J. Featherstone.

THE QUEEN'S THEATRE.

At the Queen's Theatre on Saturday night the "Irish Detective" was played. Mr. Grattan Riggs in this undertook English, Irish, German, Negro, Chinese, and Italian male or female characters, and in each exhibited his well-known mirth-provoking powers. He was assisted by Mr. J. B. Steele, Mr. O'Neil, and the general company, who combined very successfully to make the drama attractive.

THE GAIETY THEATRE.

Mr. Dampier, who appears to vary his programmes when little necessity exists for such a course, played the part of Richard the Third at this place of amusement on Saturday night. He dressed it magnificently, appearing in some scenes in complete steel armour, and in others in emblazoned regal robes. The version was Mr. Dampier's, and, if it has a fault, it is its too great length. Of the manner in which the character was acted it is not requisite to speak at length, for Mr. Dampier has played it here before. Much careful study was displayed, and the king's vicious spirit, as well as his serpentine wisdom, were amply revealed. Mr. W. G. Carey played two characters—that of Clarence and that of Richmond, and as Richmond he appeared in majestic form. The Misses Dampier were the unfortunate princes, Edward and Richmond; and Miss Adere imparted to Elizabeth the strange admixture of firmness and indecision which marked the character. There were also in the cast Mr. H. W. Emmett, Miss M. A. Melville, and Miss M. Melrose.

WILSON'S CIRCUS.

The circus was again largely patronized on Saturday, both at the matinée and the evening performance. To-night Mr. Wilson presents another programme, which will still further tax and exhibit the powers of his company of clever equestrians and acrobats. Our advertisement columns contain particulars of what is promised. The seating arrangements at the circus are excellent.

It is evident from the fine volume of harmony heard at the practices of the Sacred Choral Society, that Mr. Younger is drilling his forces with marked success, and the ear is gratified in listening to the majestic strains of several choruses which in former years have been unwisely "cut" from Handel's great masterpiece, "The Messiah." We understand that when the practices of "The Messiah" were first started this season, about six or seven weeks ago, Mr. Younger expressed his desire that the members should conquer the whole of the choral parts of the oratorio, as they form such an important part of the work. The members at once unanimously resolved to do so, and it seems the difficulties have been thoroughly overcome already. The committee, we are told, are making arrangements for an evening performance, at the Masonic Hall, about the middle of next month, and a plan of reserved seats will be issued in due course. The solo and orchestral parts will be supported by artistes of undoubted merit, and the whole performance is likely to be a great musical treat.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphs as follows:—"Mr. Coppin gave the first of a series of performances in celebration of his retirement from the stage on Saturday evening, to a crowded house, at the Theatre Royal, appearing as Chrysos in 'Pygmalion and Galatea' and the 'Artful Dodger.' The Old Colonist Association has engaged the whole of the dress circle for Thursday next. Mr. Wybert Reeve continues to attract good audiences at the Bijou. At the Opera House 'Tambour Major' is very successful. At the Princess's 'The Guv'nor' is having a good run."

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

The nominations for the various wards of the city took place on Saturday, at noon. The following gives the result:—Gipps Ward, James Merriman; Bourke Ward, John Young, Andrew Torning; Brisbane Ward, Benjamin Palmer; Macquarie Ward, Michael Chapman, Josiah Mason; Cook Ward, George Withers, George Perry; Fitzroy Ward, George Robertson Maclean, John Clement Beare, Patrick Macmahon; Phillip Ward, George Lord Carter; Denison Ward, Robert Fowler, Evan Jones; auditors, Joseph Carroll, T. W. Craven, W. J. Clarke. It will be seen that Aldermen Merriman, Palmer, and Carter were re-elected unopposed.

A meeting of the friends and supporters of Alderman G. L. Carter, a candidate for the representation of Phillip Ward in the Municipal Council, was called for Saturday evening, at Wood's Hotel, Haymarket. Mr. P. R. Larkin, who was the only other candidate, having withdrawn from the contest, Mr. Carter will have no opposition, and in consequence of this the attendance was small. Mr. James M'Mahon, who was voted to the chair, said he looked upon the fact that there had been no gentleman nominated to oppose Mr. Carter as an evidence that the electors generally of the ward were perfectly satisfied with Mr. Carter's past conduct. (Hear, hear.) Mr. D. Campbell, Alderman J. Davies, M.L.A., Mr. Gilchrist, and other gentlemen spoke in terms of high praise of Alderman Carter's past career in the council, and expressed their gratification at the fact that there was not to be a contest, because that showed clearly that the efforts of the candidate to forward the interests of Phillip Ward in particular, and the city in general, had been such as to gain the approval of the ratepayers as a body. No application from any ratepayer, however humble, had been left unattended to; and the ward, instead of being neglected, as it had been in the past, had met with that attention from the municipal authorities which its importance entitled it to receive. Alderman Carter, who was very warmly received, said it was really some encouragement to a public man to be re-elected by his constituents without opposition. He had always tried to do his very best for the ratepayers and to forward the interest of Phillip Ward, and would have done more if the funds of the council would have permitted further expenditure. While it was very pleasant for him to be returned unopposed, he did not think he had any reason to be afraid of an opponent. (Applause.) His conscience told him that he had done his duty faithfully and well. (Hear, hear.) He had never missed a meeting, except when he had been ill, or because of some other equally valid reason, since he had been in the council. (Hear, hear.) He was proud to tell them that at that moment there was on the Estimates the sum of £2200 for a dwarf wall and iron palisading to go round Prince Alfred Park. He had pressed that matter through the Council, but the vote was afterwards rescinded on account of there being no funds, the money that was available being required for roads; so he made a claim upon the Government, and succeeded in getting Mr. Lackey to place the sum stated on the Estimates to have the work done, and he had no doubt that the amount would be voted in about a week or a fortnight's time. He had been instrumental in having the ward much better lighted than it was previous to his being elected, and in various other ways had done all he could to improve the ward and the city generally. (Hear, hear.) The cause of the council doing nothing to the Blackfriars Estate was that the proprietors would not agree to make the streets and lanes there as wide as the law stipulated they should be; and until they agreed to this it was very probable that nothing would be done. He did not see why a distinction should be made between the two ends of George-street, and considered that that part of the street from the railway station northwards should be paved either with asphalt or with wood blocks. He concluded by returning those present his sincere and heartfelt thanks, and stating that he would act in the future as he had done in the past. (Applause.) A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close.

CHRISTENING OF A FIRE-ENGINE AT PYRMONT.

On Saturday afternoon last, the christening of a fire-engine for the newly formed Volunteer Fire Brigade took place on the green facing Union and Pyrmont streets, Pyrmont, when a large concourse of people—some 2000—assembled to witness the event.

Prior to the ceremony taking place, ten brigades,—viz., Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, of Sydney; the Woollahra, Glebe, Mount Lachlan, Petersham, and Balmain brigades—together with the new brigade of Pyrmont, met at No. 1 Station, Haymarket, and from thence moved in procession, with their bands playing, along Sussex-street to Kent-street, Kent-street to George-street; George-street, to Harris-street, Pyrmont; Harris-street to Point-street; and thence, to the scene of the intended christening, where a platform had been erected, and an enclosure made in front wherein to place the engine to be named. The new engine was highly decorated with flowers, and upon its arrival on the ground, and upon its being placed within the enclosure, was greeted with loud and prolonged cheering. The scene in front of the platform was one which had never before been witnessed in Pyrmont, and no doubt Saturday's proceedings will long live in the memories of those present as a day to be specially remembered.

The engine, which is a manual, light, and well adapted for the work likely to be required of it, is capable of throwing a stream of water a distance of 150 feet, and can be worked by 14 men. It is a colonial production, manufactured by Messrs. Howe and Rose, of Regent-street, Redfern, and is the second fire-engine they have turned out of their works.

As soon as the excitement caused by the arrival of the procession had subsided, the leading firemen and others about to take part, together with a number of lady and gentlemen visitors, took their seats upon the platform.

Mr. MOYSE, who was voted into the chair, then in a few brief and fitting remarks, introduced the hero of the occasion, Mr. Evan Jones, as the gentleman to whom had been allotted the pleasing task of naming the new fire baby.

Mr. JONES said he had to thank the brigade for the honour they had conferred upon him in selecting him to name the first fire-engine ever christened in Pyrmont. They had taken a step in the right direction in getting this engine. No place had made more progress during the last five years than Ultimo and Pyrmont, and he was glad of this further evidence of progress—viz., the addition of a fire-engine. Although he had lived in Pyrmont for more than twenty years, and things around were quite familiar to him, he could hardly find words to-day to express his feelings. He then referred to the Great Fire of London in 1666 when 3500 houses were destroyed, which fire might have been prevented had there been such things as fire-engines then. The time had now come when Pyrmont should have a fire-engine of its own, and he thanked the gentleman who had taken the matter in hand and spent both time and money in getting this fire-engine for the benefit of their fellow-residents. The first fire-engine was manufactured in 1823, and now they were getting one made in the colony by one of their own number. With regard to the Volunteer Fire Brigades present, he would say that they were a credit to the city. Fire was a very good servant, but a very bad master, and he hoped the new engine would be called very little into use. He had seen very few fires in Pyrmont in his time, but he was sure the new brigade would do all they could in time of fire to save property from being destroyed. He had now much pleasure in christening the new engine.

Mr. Jones then broke a bottle of champagne over the engine, naming it the "Enterprise." Three cheers were given for the engine, and three for the manufacturers, Messrs. Howe and Rose.

Mr. ABIGAIL was called upon to say a few words. He was on the side of the volunteers, for he believed volunteers were much better than pressed men. Firemen were men who would, irrespective of their own safety, go out and battle against one of the most violent elements. They would go forward to preserve the property of others; and it was therefore the duty of the residents of Pyrmont to support the new brigade in every possible way. The firemen gave their services without fee or reward, and they ought therefore to receive the support of the people. The new brigade wanted more money. They did not want it for themselves, but for the purpose of providing for the safety of others. He hoped that no occasion would arise when the engine would be required to be brought into use; but he would again repeat that if such an occasion should arise, the new brigade would do their duty without regard to their own comfort, convenience, or safety.

Mr. FOWLER said he had a very pleasant duty to perform, in proposing a vote of thanks to the various brigades for their attendance that afternoon. If there was one class of men more than another who deserved their thanks it was firemen. He had always given firemen his best support, and they had never yet appealed to him in vain for help. He had much pleasure, therefore, in moving a vote of thanks.

Mr. COLLINS rose to second the motion, but had not got far in his remarks when the platform gave way, and the occupants suddenly found themselves on the ground amidst a mass of heavy planks. At first it was thought that some children who had been standing near were underneath, but fortunately they had been got away by the police in time to prevent their being crushed; not, however, before one of them—a little girl named Jessie Finch, about 10 years of age, daughter of Mr. William Finch, landlord of the Coopers' Arms Hotel—received a blow from the falling timber, which resulted in a fracture of one of her legs; another little child, about 2 years of age, son of Mr. Bell, also received some injuries, but not of a very severe nature. The staging had been temporarily erected by the firemen themselves, but the supports were of a very feeble character for the weight of the planks, and hence the accident.

A collection was made to pay off the balance due on the new engine. Upwards of £70 was collected. Refreshments were provided at the Pyrmont Town Hall, where, after the usual toasts, the day's proceedings were brought to a close; and the various brigades, with the new brigade and their engine in front, started again in procession back to the city, where they left one by one for their various stations.

ANTHONY HORDERN AND SONS,
PALACE EMPORIUM,
HAYMARKET (ONLY).

LADIES OF FASHION and THRIFTY HOUSEWIVES make the same answer when remonstrated with for turning their backs on small tradesmen, "We can get by far better value for our money, and a larger assortment to select from at ANTHONY HORDERN and SONS' PALACE EMPORIUM, HAYMARKET," which is the grand secret of our success.

When business houses forget themselves to try and gull the public by offering "discounts for cash" we feel sure it is only necessary to warn the public that "a sovereign is always worth its value," and such attempts will meet the same fate as was meted out when 25 per cent. discount was offered some time ago.

For the guidance of our customers and the public we quote the following:—

GENT.'S TWILL SILK UMBRELLAS, 4s 11d, which some houses value at 15s.

72-inch Plain Grey Sheetings, 5½d yard

The public often wonder how it is we can sell our goods at the prices we do, and so much below other large houses. It is easily explained. The reason is, that we buy in such LARGE QUANTITIES and for PROMPT CASH, and are satisfied with such reasonable profits.

Please make no mistake in the address:—

CONTINENTAL GOSSIP.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT "STELLA.")

PARIS, SEPT. 23.

There is a sort of epidemic passion for digging for ancient objects observable at this time, during the various Governments of Europe, all of whom are devoting money and efforts to the recovery of antiquities buried in the soil. France is busy digging in Greece as well as in Africa; and the learned of this country are busy examining, classifying, and elucidating the discoveries thus effected. The programme of the work just cut out for themselves by the various learned societies that have a more or less official existence and approved by the Minister of Public Instruction, is almost alarming in its amplitude and variety. For example, the congress of these bodies, which is about to meet at the Sorbonne, will examine 15 points, on which they will report the result of their examinations concerning "Gallic coins" recently found, date of "vitrified walls," character of inscriptions, carved figures, and ornaments of Roman monuments on French soil; explain ancient inscriptions recently found, also those of the middle ages; determine from recent discoveries the character of Merovingian and Carloonagian art, character of eleventh century monuments; report on systems employed during the middle ages, to fix the first day of the year in the various parts of France; to elucidate, from authentic documents, the origin, object, and expansion of pilgrimages previous to the sixteenth century; to report on the organisation of corporations in France previous to that date; to examine the reforms of customs in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, deducing therefrom the state of legislation at that period, and the schemes adopted on the cessation of the previously continuous wars with England, with statistics of the ecclesiastical benefices and lay-landlords of that period; to illustrate by historical documents the state of elementary education in France previous to 1789; to point out and epitomise the documents concerning the Provincial Assemblies during the reign of Louis XVI.; to reduce from ancient texts and monuments the state of the manufacture of popular coloured prints, cheap figures, &c., before the 18th century; to report on the present state of literature and museums of antiquities in the department, and on the measures adopted to render those establishments as useful as possible to the expansion of historical and archæological research.

In regard to the grand affair of the feminine toilette little can be said without illustrative plates, the draping of the skirt being the main point, and this depending on the fancy and skill of each dressmaker. The general plan of a dress or costume has not changed; skirts are still dragged back as much as possible; a "scarf," generally composed of folds, goes round the skirt from the hips to the knees, and a tournure now gives additional rotundity to the region upon which it is placed. Bonnets are a babel of confusion; every style is worn, big, little, high, low, with feathers, or flowers, or any and every ornament imaginable, even to scent flowers, the size of nature, with or without a powdering of gold dust. Various new tissues are making their appearance, specially for trimming the soft woollen goods now so much in favour. One of the prettiest is a rich velvet, of a plain dark colour, sprinkled over with tiny flowers of very shiny silk, that look like jewels nestling amid the pile of the velvet.

Mr. Worth, the great dressmaker, is now employing largely English woollen goods, to which he awards the highest praise for beauty and softness. He is now making up from them exquisite costumes for Lady Bective and other English ladies.

Universal regret is expressed here for the death of the President of the United States; people and journals of all shades lamenting the fatal ending of so brave and gentle a struggle for life under conditions so painful and distressing. The late President's widow is especially felt for; after so long a strain it is feared that her strength may give way under the bitter disappointment of her persistent and courageous hope. So little is known of the new President that no very decided opinion can be formed as to the probable international effect of the event which has placed him at the head of the American Government; but the balance of expectation seems to be in his favour, based on the apparent probability of his adopting the line of policy inaugurated by his regretted predecessor. The Monarchists of all colours are naturally drawing attention to the fresh proof afforded by the tragic fate of President Garfield of the fact that under a republican form of government the chief of the state is just as likely to be attacked by assassins as under the kingly or the imperial. Human nature being the same under all forms of government, and passion, ignorance, fanaticism, &c., being equally rife in all countries and under all regimes, it is evident that political murder is as likely to occur under the republican form of government as under any other.

Here we have been shuddering over such a long succession of frightful railway accidents, all occurring within a few weeks, that the dangers of railway travelling have become the prevailing topic of conversation. The immense multiplication of trains on the same line, the insufficiency of the signals and breaks in general use, the over-working of the officials and the subordinates employed, which lays on them an amount of labour and fatigue that often renders the due discharge of their onerous and important duties a matter of simple impossibility, are all beginning to be discussed with anxiety and alarm by the public, reluctant alike to eschew railway-travelling or to risk being involved in the fearful crashing and crushing which the railway people now agreeably term "an omelette." The directors of the great line from Paris to the Mediterranean are specially blamed for their cynical apathy in regard to the horrible catastrophes which are more common on this line than on any other; and it is strongly urged that, inasmuch as they care for nothing but their receipts, the Government should raise the tariff of the indemnities they have to pay for the breakage of limbs and the loss of life to an amount which will render it more economical for them to avoid accidents than to pay for them.

Several new instances of malicious attempts to throw trains off the metals have also been made within the last few weeks, many of these being prompted, apparently, by no other motive than the atrocious desire to do mischief. Unhappily, the authors of these attempts, as stupid as infernal, usually contrive to escape detection.

We have had a few elegant weddings, and the fete got up in the Tuileries garden by the members of the Paris press, in aid of the sufferers by the troubles in Algeria, has also given some little movement to the somewhat stagnant social life of this capital at this season. All the usual "attractions" of the gatherings to which the Parisians are so partial were lavishly provided and diligently patronised by the crowds of visitors, who willingly paid their franc for entering the charmed enclosure in which they usually enjoy themselves gratis. The union of charity and pleasure is evidently just now in high and general favour. All the prettiest actresses lent their aid at the stalls, and the opportunity of seeing these renowned "stars" in broad daylight and in the dress of ordinary mortals, was eagerly seized by inquisitive observers of both sexes. Much good feeling has been shown by all those whose co-operation was needed to get up the affair. Although the carpenters of Paris are now on a strike, their Sydical Chamber deputed a sufficient number of men to do the necessary work for the press fete, and these firmly declined receiving any pay for the valuable and indispensable services thus rendered by them. The masons employed refused in like manner to be paid for their work; and contributions of all kinds were generously sent to the committee in aid of the patriotic undertaking. The fete was picturesque, animated, amusing, and successful; and the great number of children present, and the immense enjoyment they got out of all its details, was one of the pleasantest features of the affair. The receipts of the fete amounted to 380,000f.; the sale of the tombola (raffle) tickets produced 360,000f.; the theatres set up in the orangery, the kermesse, fees paid by the establishments of all sorts, the dancing tents, the shows, &c., produced 20,000f. The total expenditure amounted to 150,000f., leaving in hand for the benefit of the victims of Algerian troubles, a balance of 230,000 francs. Many of the principal towns of France have been getting up similar fetes, organized, for the same charitable end, by the members of the press in each city.

An establishment, on the plan of the Crystal Palace at Sydenham is about to be formed on the site of the defunct Palace of Saint Cloud, so needlessly destroyed by the French themselves during the late war. The project will be submitted to the Chambers on their reopening; and, unless some unforeseen difficulties should come up, the work will begin next year. The intention seems to be to organize among other things a retrospective Museum, and to make a necropolis and crypts in the vaults under the palace; the beauty and historic interest of the site are expected naturally to enhance the success of the affair, especially in the summer, when the new rival of Sydenham will doubtless attract an incessant stream of profitable visitors.

NEW CALEDONIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NOUMEA, Nov. 20.

The passengers of the India and Precurseur, in all upwards of 100, were kept on board their respective vessels two days after their arrival, anchored close to the island Freycinet, 4 miles from Noumea, until the termination of the orthodox 12 days from the date of departure from Sydney of the passengers by the previous mail, they being in occupation of the station. So soon as they left for Noumea on the 3rd instant the new arrivals disembarked, those per India, following good advice, being first in possession. "How did you pass your quarantine?" was asked of one. "Dull enough, I suppose?" "Quite the contrary; rarely more interested and amused in my life, though I am not sorry it has come to a termination." We from the India landed early, and took up our quarters peaceably enough. We were hardly settled when such a hubbub as you can imagine from the rush of nearly 100 passengers from the ship seemed to fill the, till then, quiet little place. It was a sight to be remembered as they poured in with their various goods and chattels, clamouring for place. Eventually the tumult lessened, and the first and second class passengers were allotted their respective places. We of the former sat down, about 30 in number, to breakfast at 12.30; and a very liberal and attentively served breakfast it was, far more so than could have been expected under such circumstances. Course after course followed the initiatory one of excellent oysters. At dinner huge dishes of macaroni, with cheese nicely grated over it; dish after dish of sliced pineapples, soaked in wine; abundance of vegetables and fruit rather surprised us. Even ice was liberally distributed to cool the wine, which was abundantly supplied. How all could be furnished for the moderate sum of eight francs (6s. 8d.) per day, inclusive of lodging, table linen, &c., was a puzzle. All was so very novel, so unlike anything I had ever witnessed, that I was as interested as pleased, but especially so by the politeness with which all was done. From the officer in charge, Monsieur Lieutenant Chatenay, who took the head of the table, down to the black attendants, all was done in the most charming manner. "A leetle more ros-bif, Mess;" or "Voulez vous one piece of bread, Monsieur?" was delightful, from its evident desire to please. I thought that breakfast would never come to an end, like Paddy's rope, which had "both of its ends cut off" by the sailor who, riding in Paddy's cart on a dark night, spliced the said rope. And before it did come to an end, a violent commotion was heard outside among the second-class passengers. There was a general rush from the table to the doors and windows, and such a clatter of voices as I had never listened to. When the tide of people flooded back to their places, it transpired that a husband had stabbed his wife with a huge knife. At dinner the same evening there was another commotion, another rush from table, and the same uproar of many voices, caused this time by another amiable husband beating his wife until she was insensible. Next morning a boat from the Precurseur upset; general rush, people dashing up and down the beach bareheaded in the blazing sun watching the various efforts, which succeeded in saving the man clinging for dear life to the boat. Altogether it was anything but dull—rather too lively—until the arrival of six gendarmes, who succeeded in restoring order and some little respite for poor Lieutenant Chatenay, whose handsome head of hair seemed in great danger as he dashed here and there, half distracted by the novel state of affairs. I really pitied him, for he was so kind and attentive to every one. No! my quarantine was not dull!

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

The Bench was composed on Saturday of the Police Magistrate and Mr. Deane.

William Gleeson, who failed to appear at the Quarter Sessions to answer a charge of larceny, was, on Friday night, apprehended on warrant by Constables O'Connor and Glanville, and was remanded to await his trial.

Ann Miley, convicted of vagrancy, was sentenced to be imprisoned three months.

Mary Brennan, fined 20s. for having been found drunk in a public place about midnight, was further charged with having, while in custody, made use of obscene language, and received on that ground a sentence to pay 60s., or to be imprisoned two months.

Helena Williams, charged with being a common prostitute, found wandering in George-street, near midnight, and behaving in a riotous manner, was sentenced to be imprisoned 14 days.

George Hutchinson, Charles Laurence, and John Kelly were charged with being suspected persons, frequenting Market-street with intent to commit a felony. About 5 o'clock on Friday afternoon Constable Timbs saw the three persons examining the pockets of a drunken man, and went for another policeman, with whose assistance he apprehended the three. To be imprisoned one month.

WATER POLICE COURT.

Messrs. Marsh, W.P.M., and Scott and V. Brown, Js.P., dealt with the business of the Water Police Court on Saturday.

Edward Tansley was brought up on remand, charged with having on the night of the 11th instant stolen the sum of £1 15s., the moneys of David Anderson. The prosecutor was a steward on board of the ship Malay, which he joined at Wellington, New Zealand. He came ashore on the evening of the 11th instant, and met prisoner at about 6 o'clock. They visited a public-house, and afterwards, at the invitation of the prisoner, went for a walk in the Domain, where it was alleged the robbery was committed. Anderson called "police," and Constable Dunlop went there and found prisoner sneaking away in the direction of Woolloomooloo. Tansley was committed for trial. Bail was allowed; prisoner in his own recognisance of £50, and two sureties of £25 each.

Arthur W. Andrews alias John Jones, on a charge of being drunk and disorderly in Lower Fort-street, was fined 20s., while a fine of 40s. was also imposed upon him for using obscene language in the same street.

NEWTOWN POLICE COURT.

At this court, on Saturday, before Mr. C. Lester, J.P., Arthur Chapman, 15, Frederick Maxwell, 14, and Edward Caldwell, 8, for stealing from the dwelling-house of Thomas Boyd, books to the value of 2s. each, were ordered to find one surety of £10 for their good behaviour for six months. Sonny, a New Caledonian native, for threatening to assault Mrs. Wilson, at South Kingston, was remanded for seven days.

NEW CHURCH AT WAVERLEY.

The foundation-stone of a new Congregational Church, to be erected at Waverley, was laid on Saturday last by Mr. Josiah Mullens. A large number of ladies and gentlemen were present, and amongst them were the Revs. J. T. W. Davies (Chairman of the Congregational Union), T. Johnson, J. G. Fraser, J. P. Sunderland, G. Pratt, J. Campbell, T. Laver, J. Richard, J. H. Mitchell, P. Law, R. T. Hills, S. W. Asher, E. Adams, G. Preston, T. J. Pepper, E. Robinson, W. Allen, J. A. Nolan, J. B. Waterhouse, and W. Curnow; Messrs. John Thompson, W. J. Greer, A. Saddington, R. G. Reading, R. Hardie, J. H. Newman, G. Hardie, James Thompson, F. Hall, T. B. Walker, W. S. Buzacott, S. Symonds, J. Poulton, H. Richardson, A. Allen, E. Vickery, and Dr. P. S. Jones.

The proceedings were commenced with the singing of a hymn, during which Miss Stonier accompanied the singers on a harmonium, and after which the Rev. G. Campbell solicited the Creator to vouchsafe His blessing on the undertaking. Mr. John Thompson next gave a short history of the efforts made to secure a suitable site for the church. He explained that the original site selected in Cowper-street had been sold at a profit of £300, and that the committee selected the present one as being more eligible for the purpose in view. The idea was to use the contemplated building as a school church, and eventually to erect on the same land a larger building to be used solely for religious services.

A bottle containing copies of the local papers, the model deed, the Congregational Independent, and other documents, was placed in a cavity in the nether stone, and Mr. Mullens, having been presented with a handsome silver trowel and a myall mallet, completed the ceremony of laying the foundation-stone. After referring to ancient temples which had been raised to the worship of the Creator, Mr. Mullens said that the present period on this earth was one of transitions, questionings, and siftings of everything traditional. They had no need to fear the result. They were not obliged to take all the inferences and conclusions drawn from new discoveries as to the material world; neither must they fight against facts which were, after all, pencil-marks which the Creator left on his works to exercise their faculties of observation and reflection, and which were intended to lead them to reconsider statements concerning the beginning of the world's history, which their predecessors, while they lived in less light than was vouchsafed to after generations, held to be sure. Let them take, for instance, discoveries of anthropological science, telling of men living in periods long prior to the date assigned in the margin of the Bible to the creation of man. What followed? Not that the Bible was untrue, but simply that the date was possibly wrong, and the ordinary belief about the creation of man was possibly wrong also. Read with a critical eye in the light of new facts, the Bible told of races existing long before the Adamite race appeared as the culmination of creation. They could understand now why Cain feared that if he left the seat of his race he might be killed; and they could also understand that when he joined the pre-Adamites, his big brain, power of rule, and faculty of government gave him pre-eminence, and enabled him to found a city. In like manner the white Caucasian race of the present day ruled over surviving remnants of those pre-Adamite races, the negroes of Africa, and the aboriginals of this country, who even now had no history, and had the same moral status and civilisation as their forefathers had. They need not be afraid of truths which related to the physical material world, and which had now so much attention paid to them. God's word would be found to accord with His works and with human history. It was not of such matters those who taught in this new house of prayer would have to treat principally, though a true teacher sent from God would not ignore them altogether. Their Bible did but glance at these things. Its transcendental theme was the history of man's fall and redemption. Its teachings reached beyond visible and temporal matters, and ascended from the history of the natural man to the domain of the spiritual. It told the story of that divine love which became incarnate in Jesus Christ, who stooped so as to embrace the lowest of mankind with arms of love, and who was so strong as to lift them from their estate, and make them partakers of His Divine nature. Building on this foundation, they who believed would not be put to shame. Though weak in themselves, they would participate in the power which would move the world until the end should come, righteousness should be set for a plummet, every refuge of falsehood be swept away, and Christ, the Eternal Truth alone abide. That this house, now begun, might aid in the glorious work was his earnest desire.

The Rev. J. T. WARLOW DAVIES congratulated the Congregationalists of Waverley on the happy circumstances in which their enterprise was launched. The district was an important one, its population large; the site was central and beautiful; the managing committee had given proof of zeal, energy, and liberality, which promised well for the future. They heard a great deal just now of the prosperity of the colony, which, in his opinion, could not be painted in colours too bright. Let them hope that some eddies of the great river would find their way into the channels of religious efforts and institutions, and let them say that the poor should participate in them. Let them adopt and act up to the motto of the Crossleys of Halifax, that "If God gives us prosperity, the poor shall taste of it," and they would see churches multiplied on every hand, their architecture improved, and the burden and reproach of debts removed. The Congregationalists of Waverley had commenced well, and deserved the hearty co-operation of the other churches. Let them hope that when this building was completed they would be enabled to dedicate it to the service of God, free from all encumbrance. The messages of mercy, hope, and peace, would be delivered in it, they trusted, for ages to come. A fellowship would be gathered, and all its life and work would throb for love of Christ who died for them. This was no Druidical temple with mysterious circles, no Mahommedan mosque, no heathen shrine, no temple of humanity; but a house of healing in which the Great Physician would heal all manner of diseases. The foundation stone would bear witness to many truths, amongst which was their willingness to undertake at their own expense the cost of providing means of carrying on their religious services and their systems of instruction. Independents had always contended for the principles which guided them to do this. They had not dipped into the public purse, nor did they desire to do so; and they were prepared to abide by those principles, which, they believed, were now generally approved of. Whatever was done there would be done voluntarily, with love in the heart and without fear of the result. Their churches had a work to do, and they meant to do it. The stone bore witness to their catholicity and attachment to their principles as a denomination. These principles, he believed, were in accordance with the spirit of democracy existing in this country. The freedom, the spirit of progress, and the liberality of their principle, placed them in a position for undertaking a work here, and he hoped they would have provided for them wisdom, energy, and grace requisite for thoroughly accomplishing it.

Mr. J. H. NEWMAN read a financial statement in connection with the work. From this it appeared that £397 had been received in subscriptions, and £700 from the sale of the Cowper-street site. The cost of this site amounted to £394. Interest and sundries were received to the amount of £39 13s. 9d. The Botany-street site cost £600, and the balance in hand was £63 9s. 3d. To the latter amount was to be added £500 the committee had promised they would collect. A collection was then made, which resulted in about £200 being obtained.

Mr. W. J. Green and the Revs. J. P. Sunderland and W. Curnow delivered short addresses on the work in hand, the last-named gentleman pointing out how necessary were good acoustics, good ventilation, and a sufficiency of light in buildings such as that about to be erected.

The proceedings terminated with singing and prayer.

The church, which will accommodate about 220 adults, is to be of Gothic design, and will be particularly pleasing in appearance. It is to be built of bricks, with chiselled stone facings, on solid stone foundations. The roof will be slated, and finished internally with principals and boarded ceiling, the latter of which will be effectively formed into panels by means of mouldings. A handsome rostrum is to be included, and the interior of the church will have a dadoe three feet high all round. At the south end, facing Botany-street, the principal entrance porch will be placed, and at the north end a commodious vestry. Convenience and comfort have been carefully studied, especially with regard to thorough ventilation. The contract amounts to £1250. Mr. Herbert S. Thompson, of Pitt-street, is the architect; and J. Johns of Paddington, the contractor.

DISTRICT OF BLIGH.

FOR POSITIVE SALE.

THOSE MAGNIFICENT and HIGHLY IMPROVED PASTORAL PROPERTIES, WOMBOBBIE
and WANBANDRY,
situated on the MACQUARIE RIVER, about 60 miles from DUBBO, together with the EXTENSIVE and IMPORTANT IMPROVEMENTS thereon, and the following Stock—viz.,
90,000 HIGH-CLASS SHEEP
and
1400 WELL-BRED CATTLE.

. Stores, working plant, and all other belongings to be taken by valuation in the usual way.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from the PROPRIETOR, in consequence of his intended departure for Europe, to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, on THURSDAY, the 15th DECEMBER, at 11 o'clock,
The above valuable pastoral properties.

WOMBOBBIE and WANBANDRY adjoin each other, and within their boundaries contain SEVEN BLOCKS of COUNTRY, viz.,

Wombobbie	Urebulla
New Wombobbie	Eulawang
Wermobal	New Bundilla

and Wanbandry, forming together an enormous area (estimated at 180,000 acres) of the richest description of fattening country, consisting principally of open plains of myall and salt bush.
The IMPROVEMENTS are of the most extensive and complete character, both at Wombobbie and Wanbandry, and include every convenience for the residence of a gentleman's family at either place, and every facility for working the property. The whole run is enclosed and sub-divided by fencing nearly all of five to seven wires, there being about 175 miles of fencing on the property costing on an average £80 per mile.

LAND.
The FREEHOLD LAND aggregates 3410 acres, having 8610 acres of pre-emptives attached thereto, and the selected lands number 1720 acres, upon which all the requirements of the Land Act have been complied with, and upon which 15s per acre has to be paid to make them freehold. These lands will be reckoned in the purchase money as follows, viz.:—
Freeholds, 3410 acres, at £3 per acre, and Selections, 1720 „ at £1 5s per acre.

The STOCK to be sold with this property is as follows, viz.:—

SHEEP.

Ewes, more or less...	49,000
Wethers, more or less	40,000
Rams, various ages	800
Total sheep	89,800

The whole of the above sheep are station-bred, and for a period of 13 years the ewe flocks have been annually closely culled, and the rams selected from the stud flock by the proprietor, assisted by the able experience of Mr. J. J. Walsh, the well-known sheep judge of Mudgee. In short nothing has been left undone to bring the flocks up to the highest standard of quality for wool-producing and large carcasses. The breeding flocks give a total of 34,000 sheep, including 12,000 maidens to be put to the rams for next season's lambing.
The CATTLE number
1400 HEAD, more or less.
This herd is also all station-bred, and is of a first-class description, its fat stock always topping the Sydney market in price.

The above stations are admitted to rank amongst the choicest properties in the noted BLIGH DISTRICT; and for their EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS and SUBSTANTIAL FENCING they STAND PRE-EMINENT.
The Wombobbie paddocks are equal, in average seasons, to carry at least 100,000 sheep, two large paddocks at the present being held in reserve unstocked; while the Wanbandry Run has, so to speak, but a handful of cattle depasturing on it; and as its grass and herbage are equal in quality to the Wombobbie country both for wool-growing and fattening stock, a removal of the cattle would give ample room for at least 20,000 additional sheep.
The intention of the proprietor to relinquish squatting is the sole reason of the above stations being brought under the hammer; and capitalists looking out for a first-class investment should not lose sight of the opportunity thus afforded by this sale.
A thorough inspection is invited, and intending purchasers will receive every attention on the stations, to enable them to view the run and the stock.
TERMS, LIBERAL.
PLAN on view at the Rooms.

BRIGHTON BY THE SEA
WAS OF OLD
The FAVOURITE SUMMER RESIDENCE
of that
PLEASURE-LOVING MONARCH,
THE GREATEST GENTLEMAN IN EUROPE,
KING GEORGE THE FOURTH, whom Byron describes as
"A GENTLEMAN FROM TOE TO TOP,"
but had the GREATEST GENTLEMAN in EUROPE
SEEN COOGEE
The CHARMS of the SOUTHERN SYLVANA would have been too much FOR BRIGHTON,
and the KING WOULD HAVE ENJOYED
THE SEA AT COOGEE.

The LOVELIEST SPOT
of that
LOVELY COOGEE SUBURB is unquestionably
AVOCA SQUARE,
SWEET VALE OF AVOCA, whose charms have been celebrated by
BYRON'S BIOGRAPHER,
MOORE, THE IRISH MELODIST,
the most melodious of our English poets.

But the CHARMS OF THAT LOVELY VALE and of the
INTERSECTING HILLS
WITH THE WOODLANDS
And hills all rich with blossomed trees,
And fields which promise corn and wine,
And scattered cities crowning these,
Whose far white walls along them shine,
Have strewed a scene which I should see
With double joy wert thou with me.

SO SINGS BYRON. Who "thou" is it is not necessary to mention, but in speaking of AVOCA, 'twere a sin not to mention the LOVELY VIEWS which are hidden from "the castled crag of Drachenfels, which frowns o'er the wide and winding Rhine." In fact,
AVOCA
SHOULD BE SEEN TO BE APPRECIATED.

681 ACRES.

By order of the Trustees of the ESTATE of the late JOHN SHEPHERD.

MILLS, PILE, and GILCHRIST have been instructed to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, 114, Pitt-street, Sydney, at half-past 11, on TUESDAY, 10th JANUARY, 1882.

That beautiful property, known as the MOUNT OTTWAY ESTATE, situate at MARULAN, on the Great Southern Railway, a short distance from the station, consisting as under:—

Block 1.—Comprises 640 acres of excellent land on the western side of the main South-road, to which it has over a mile frontage; bounded on the north by the Quarry reserve, and on the south by the properties of Messrs. Chapman and Beresford.

Block 2.—Comprises 31 acres, and adjoins the Marulan Common. It has a large frontage to the main South-road.

This fine estate is remarkably well situated, it is in the immediate neighbourhood of several first-class houses; timber and building stone are abundant. It would sell well as a subdivision.

The Government have lately withdrawn all Crown lands in the vicinity of this property from sale, so that this is an opportunity of securing an estate in this district which will not happen again for some time. Gold having been discovered near Minnafield (only a few miles from Marulan), it will shortly be proclaimed a goldfield by the Government.
